TELEGRAMS FROM HARRISBURGH.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

HARRISBURGH, Penn., Wednesday, June 24.

The rebel cavalry advanced to Shippensburgh this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Telegraphic communication was suspended at that place. The operator retired to Newville, and at last accounts was at Graysonville, six miles above Carlisle and twenty-four from Harrisburgh.

At the present moment the Eighth and Seventy-first New-York are at Carlisle. Gen. KNIPE is at that point. A train of cars with the engine fully steamed is in readiness to convey the troops hither in case the emergency should demand it. Gen. KNIPE has telegraphed to Gen. COUCH that he wants to make a stand at Carlisle, but in order to do it he must have reinforcements. As yet the reinforcements here have not been sent out, and in all probability the troops will be ordered to fall back to Harrisburgh.

A deserter who came in this afternoon, reports that EWELL's entire division is advancing this way. It comprises twelve thousand men, beside a heavy force of cavalry under JENKINS. The cavalry is some miles in the advance, and will probably come up to Carlisle to-night.

The authorities here expect an attack by to-morrow or Friday. Artillery has been placed in position in the fortifications, and troops have been sent to a proper distance in front

People from the towns above are flocking into Harrisburgh in large numbers. They bring with them numerous horses and cattle, and whole cart loads of furniture and other property. Three hundred contrabands have just come into town, having arrived from Carlisle. Nine prisoners, including three contrabands, have been brought in from Dauphin, situated six miles above here on the Susquehanna. They were all mounted on good horses, and the saddles are of a uniform pattern.

The rebels burned the bridge at Scotland this afternoon.

Sheriff RIELEY, of Cumberland, was captured by the rebels when they reëntered Chambersburgh yesterday. They, however, did not know of his official character, else he would not have so easily escaped as was the case. He arrived at Carlisle to-day. He states that the rebels are scattered over every part of the county, helping themselves to cattle and horses. JENKINS issued an order for the inhabitants to bring in supplies for the troops, which if not complied with he should seize such as he required. In a short time wagon loads of supplies were flocking into town. The rebels told the inhabitants that they need not trouble themselves to rebuild the Scotland bridge again, as they had come to hold the town during the Summer.

Dissatisfaction is expressed by the Seventy-first and Eighth regiments, at Carlisle, at the indifference of the inhabitants of that section as to their instrumentality in the present movement, and in fact frequent indignities offered them. Four members of the Seventy-first New-York came in to-night. The Thirteenth and Twenty-eighth New-York regiments have advanced from the fortifications this evening.

HARRISBURGH, Penn., Wednesday, June 24.

Capt. BOYD, with about sixty of the First New-York cavalry and fifteen of a Maryland regiment, is upon the wagon-road eight miles above Carlisle, and one and a quarter miles to the left of Graysonville. The enemy's advance is one mile from him, on the same road. Capt. BOYD communicates with Harrisburgh by sending a messenger across the fields to the operator at Graysonville.

Lieut. KNOWLES, of the First New-York cavalry, came in from Shippensburgh to-night. He says that a miller had secreted in the woods, between Chambersburgh and Greencastle, three hundred barrels of flour, which was discovered and seized by the rebels. The most patriotic of the farmers took the lynch-pins from their wagons, but the rebels, finding them in that condition, completely demolished them.

Gen. COUCH is concentrating a large force near Gettysburgh to operate on the right flank of the enemy.

Information received here of certain movements of the Army of the Potomac, indicates that the rebel invaders will find it a difficut task to return to Virginia. WHIT.

HARRISBURGH, Wednesday, June 24.

The operator at Shippensburgh, eleven miles this side of Chambersburgh, telegraphed at 12 o'clock to-day that the rebels were one mile from the town, and advancing in this direction.

HARRISBURGH, Wednesday, June 24.

The city has been in a high state of excitement all day. News from up the valley shows that the rebels are rapidly advancing in this direction in strong force. No troops would likely venture so far from the base of their operations, into an enemy's country, without force sufficient to act on the offensive. So far no opposition has been made to their movements. The rebels are now twelve miles from Carlisle, and still advancing. Gen. KNIPE, commanding the forces in the valley, will probably give them battle at that point. The rebels will do doubt appear in front of that town to-morrow. Our cavalry, who fall back as the rebels advance, have been unable to discover any infantry as yet, but there is no doubt that a strong force is in supporting distance.

A deserter belonging to the Forty-fourth Georgia regiment arrived here to-day. On Sunday night his regiment was doing picket duty near Hagerstown, and on Monday morning fifty of them deserted and safely made their way to the mountains, where they remained all night. Yesterday morning they all started for Frederick City, hoping to make their way to Baltimore, with the exception of this man, who came to Gettysburgh. He states that EWELL's whole corps of six brigades was at Hagerstown, when he left. They number about 12,000. The last brigade left Williamsport on Friday, arriving at Hagerstown the same day. Orders were issued on Sunday for the corps to move at 5 o'clock Monday morning. It is believed they are coming in this direction, supporting JENKINS' force of cavalry.

Sixteen veterans of the war of 1812 to-day visited the Governor at the capitol, and tendered their services, which were accepted.

TELEGRAMS FROM McCONNELLSBURGH.

McCONNELLSBURGH, Penn., Wednesday, June 24.

The excitement along the border remains unabated. Business is at a perfect stand-still, being exposed constantly to incursions of marauding rebel bands. Farmers are compelled to keep their horses concealed in the mountains, and the prospects of reaping the coming harvests are discouraging. The rebels are overrunning Franklin County.

Two rebel deserters from a North Carolina regiment, belonging to EWELL's corps, came into our lines this morning, and report that the whole of that commander's forces are in Pennsylvania. The rebels are in force at Mercersburgh, and have driven in our pickets this side of the town. It is thought they will attempt to feel our strength this side of the mountains.

4:50 P. M.—Rebel infantry are reported coming up the mountain from Mercersburgh in force. The roads are blockaded, but poorly supported.

IMPORTANT FROM MARYLAND.

Confirmation of the Report of Ewell's Movement into Pennsylvania.

THE EXPEDITION ONE FOR PLUNDER.

Boasts of the Rebels that They Will March on Harrisburgh and Philadelphia.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

FREDERICK, Md., Wednesday, June 24.

There is no longer any doubt that the rebels are in strong force on this side of the Potomac, and are marching into Pennsylvania. Refugees who arrived here this evening from near the Pennsylvania line, state that this morning, at 9 o'clock, EARLY's division, of EWELL's corps, passed through Smithsburgh, on their way to Chambersburgh, which is 22 miles distant.

They had with them sixteen pieces of artillery, two regiments of cavalry and twelve of infantry—in all, about 8,000 men. Gen. RHODES' Division took the Greencastle road from Hagerstown, and a third division of the enemy are reported advancing upon Mercersburgh from the direction of Hancock.

EWELL commands in person. He was in Hagerstown yesterday.

The rebel army is accompanied by an immense wagon train, which would indicate that the movement is more for purposes of plunder than anything else.

The rebels evacuated South Mountain yesterday, taking the road toward Greencastle. The rebels are seizing all the horses and cattle they can lay their hands upon, and sending them to the rear. Orders have been issued by the rebel commanders to spare the property of Marylanders, but when they arrive in Pennsylvania they shall have unbridled linense to plunder and devastate.

The rebel officers proclaim that it is their intention to march first upon Harrisburgh and then upon Philadelphia. The unorganized and inexperienced militia assembled for the defence of the State, they say, will form no barrier to their march through the State. H.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, June 24.

Information received at Gen. SCHENCK's headquarters this morning, from Frederick, says that the rebels, with a considerable force of infantry, cavalry and artillery, are again threatening Frederick, and are half way between Middletown and Boonsboro, crossing South Mountain.

Our scouts are now out, and more definite news is expected in a few hours.

MOVEMENTS OF THE REBELS.

From the Baltimore American of yesterday.

We learn from Maj.-Gen. SCHENCK's Headquarters that information was received last evening, from his scouts on the South Mountain, that the rebel Gen. EWELL's entire force is now in the Boonsboro Valley, numbering not less than thirty-five to forty thousand men. These scouts state that they approached on the mountains within view of the enemy's encampments, and were certain that they do not exaggerate his strength. They were scouting through the surrounding country and gathering supplies and forage. They crossed at Antietam Ford and appeared to be settled down for a lengthened occupation. There were no indications of a movement in the direction of Frederick, but their foraging parties were scouring the country across the Pennsylvania line.

The scouts also report that the rebels are building bridges across the canal, indicating preparations for the advance of the whole army, or to facilitate their rapid exit if it should prove necessary.

VISIT OF MAJ.-GEN. HALLECK.

The General-in-Chief unexpectedly appeared in Baltimore yesterday. Accompanied by Maj.-Gen. SCHENCK and Staff, he proceeded to inspect the preparations for defence in and about the city. After a rapid yet evidently close inspection, Gen. HALLECK expressed himself pleased with the works—indeed, surprised at the rapidity with which the defences had been planned and executed. He returned to Washington in the afternoon train.

It is the opinion of officers of the Engineer corps that no city in the Union possesses greater natural advantages for defence than Baltimore, and that the works now rapidly approaching completion will fully command every approach.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

News from Gen. Hooker's Headquarters to Yesterday.

The Bulk of the Rebel Army West of the Blue Ridge.

Reconnoissance to Warrenton and Other Points by Gen. Stahl.

No Enemy Discovered in That Direction.

PLEASANTON WATCHING STUART CLOSELY

The Movement of Ewell Across the Potomac.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Wednesday, June 24, 1863.

Gen. STAHL'S command returned last evening from an extended reconnoissance in the vicinity of Warrenton. They visited not only Warrenton, but Sulphur Springs and Rappahannock Ford, and scoured the country down through Bentsville, to Elk Run and Spotted Tavern—the latter one of our last Winter's haunts. No force of rebels whatever was discovered. Their entire force is undoubtedly west of the Blue Ridge.

Information received to-day renders it nearly positive that the whole of EWELL's corps has been transferred into Maryland. This corps numbers about 23,000 infantry and artillery.

STUART's cavalry range up and down the Loudon Valley, under the eastern shadows of the Blue Ridge. PLEASANTON keeps a sharp lookout for him, and slight skirmishes occur daily. The number of prisoners taken in PLEASANTON's cavalry battles during the past week is 450, including 20 officers—among them one Colonel, three Lieutenant-Colonels, three Majors, and the rest line officers.

L. L. CROUNSE.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, June 24.

It is ascertained that, with the exception of some slight skirmishing in the Bull Run valley, there was no fighting yesterday. All was quiet apparently along our front, to-day. Yesterday, owing to some imperfect picketing, some of MOSELEY's irregular cavalry came upon the Chantilley road, near Cub Run, and destroyed several of our wagons with ammunition, forage, &c. They were pursued, and, it is reported, some of them captured.

Several bundles of Northern newspapers were seized and confiscated, yesterday, but for what cause is not publicly known.

OUR SPECIAL ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Tuesday, June 23, 1863.

The achievements of our cavalry are the topic of much favorable comment among the men and officers of the army, particularly among the infantry, who are fast getting in love with the cavalry—there having been, heretofore, plenty of room for an increase of affection between them. The early and accurate accounts of the late cavalry battles, from the TIMES cavalry correspondent, are the only ones that have appeared here, and are read with much avidity.

Aside from the fact that STUART's impudent force has been thoroughly whipped, and now retires cowed and crestfallen, before our confident squadrons, another and still more important thing has been achieved. The whole rebel infantry movement has been completely unmasked, and it is demonstrated beyond doubt that but for the sagacious dispositions of this army, and the bold, vigorous and determined reconnoissances by the cavalry, LEE's army would ere this have been in Maryland, by the very route he chose last year. This movement has been foiled. Of course, he may invade by way of Williamsport, but that route is far more distant and dangerous for him than the one by way of Nolan's Ford and Frederick, and places our army directly in his rear. At present he cannot invade Maryland by any point east of Harper's Ferry.

In my dispatch of the 18th I said: "The present position of the enemy, comparing all my information, I believe to be this: LONGSTREET and EWELL in the valley near Winchester; HILL on the march between Culpepper and Chester Gap; but he has hardly had time to get on the other side of the Blue Ridge."

Within the past forty-eight hours this information has been substantially confirmed. On Thursday last LONGSTREET moved through Ashby's Gap to the Loudon Valley, on this side; for what purpose is not fully known; but STUART's cavalry, which was masking his movement, being attacked in front and rear by PLEASANTON and DUFIE, LONGSTREET divided his command in two columns at Upperside, and moved both toward Snicker's Gap, one column by way of Middleburgh, whose rear DUFIE followed on the 18th, and picked up a couple of hundred stragglers; the other column direct to Snickersville, along the eastern base of the Blue Ridge. On Saturday he pushed through Snicker's Gap and crossed the Shenandoah River, encamping on its banks, and leaving PICKET's division to hold the gap.

On Sunday Gen. BUFORD pushed a bold reconnoissance to the top of the Blue Ridge, and discovered LONGSTREET's camp in plain sight on the line of the river at the base of the mountains. Further information received at the outposts yesterday and Sunday, which is reliable in its character, places HILL's corps on the western side of the Blue Ridge, having marched by way of Chester Gap. He has probably joined LONGSTREET ere this. LEE's headquarters were at Winchester on Sunday. EWELL's corps was in the vicinity of Winchester, one division, RHODES', numbering about eight thousand men, being thrown up on the line of the Potomac, to support the guerrillas of JENKINS and IMBODEN, who are there expressly for the purpose of ravaging the country for horses and supplies, and not for the purpose of fighting. This will be demonstrated in a very few days to a certainty.

The matter of invasion is now reduced to one route only, and if the rebels are really in earnest about it they will soon demonstrate it, and they may be looked for on a line west of the Blue Ridge and South Mountain—crossing either at Williamsport, or at Blackford's Ford, below Shepherdstown. The possibility of crossing the Potomac below Harper's Ferry no longer exists.

In executing this movement the rebels will, of course, conceal it from our knowledge as much as possible, by defending the passages of the Blue Ridge, and possibly by also seizing and holding the gaps of South Mountain, out of which they were so summarily routed last year. But with wide-awake cavalry scouts on the Pennsylvania border, together with the friendly people of that section, we shall not be blameless if we do not have early and full notice of their approach and operations.

The total number of prisoners captured on Sunday will reach one hundred and fifty—among them twelve officers—one Colonel, wounded, three Lieutenant-Colonels, one Major, and the rest line officers. Nearly twenty-five of the enemy's best cavalry officers have been taken within the past five days. The prospects for "retaliation" on their part are not much enhanced by these captures.

MOSBY, yesterday, tried his hand at another raid in this vicinity, but got most handsomely beaten and scattered. He crossed the Bull Run Mountains with several hundred cavalry, between Aldie and Thoroughfare Gaps. He sent a portion of his forces down to the Mountain Pike, with the evident intention of picking up any wagons or stragglers they might find there. With about a hundred men, he pushed for the Aldie Pike, and debouched out on that road, just below Gum Spring. He soon encountered an ammunition train, on which he charged, and, of course, captured it. He then proceeded to unhitch and drive off all the horses and mules, and was just in the act of setting fire to the wagons, when a battalion of the Twelfth Illinois cavalry, who had been resting in the woods just below, charged up the road, and after a short contest scattered MOSBY's crew to the winds, recapturing all the horses and mules, and taking ten of his gang prisoners. In the meantime, another force above MOSBY came down the road, and the rebels incontinently scattered into the woods and by-roads, having done no damage. We had not a man killed or wounded. The rest of his cavalry, which went down to the Warrenton road, ran into some of our infantry, and they also got scattered, some of them being captured.

Further Particulars of the Cavalry Fight.

ALDIE, Va., Monday, June 22—6 A. M.

The cavalry fight of yesterday was conducted by the columns of BUFORD on the right and GREGG on the left. GREGG's column was mainly engaged in an artillery fight of a running character, the rebels being rapidly dislodged from one position to another for a distance of twelve miles. Three guns and one caisson were taken during the day, and two caissons were blown up.

At Upperville the enemy made a stout resistance and a charge, in which they were repulsed, losing their Colonel, who was wounded and captured. GREGG's column took 80 prisoners, including five or six officers, one Colonel, one Major and several line officers. Our loss was light.

Col. VINCENT's infantry brigade, from the Fifth corps, were actively engaged early in the day, and captured one gun. They lost about twenty killed and wounded.

Gen. BUFORD, on the right, had the most cavalry fighting, but drove the enemy uniformly throughout the day. When near Ashby's Gap, he cut off a large body of the enemy, and compelled them to retreat by way of Snicker's Gap.

There are now no rebels in the Loudon Valley, it having been cleared by our cavalry. LEE's whole army is certainly west of the Blue Qidge, on the line of the Shenandoah.

The battle of yesterday was very handsome, successful, and our loss much less than usual.

THE ADVANCE UPON ASHBY'S GAP

The Cavalry Fight Continued at Middleburgh and Rector's Cross Roads—List of Killed and Wounded.

NEAR RECTOR'S FOUR CORNERS, Va., Friday Evening, June 19, 1863.

Portions of Gen. GREGG's cavalry command have been engaged skirmishing with the enemy nearly all day. The enemy's line of skirmishers were met early this morning in a piece of woods a little to the west of Middleburgh, and they were gradually forced back about five miles on the road leading to Ashby's Gap, where, it is said, the enemy have two brigades of infantry. Artillery was used occasionally on both sides, but most of the time the fight was more of an Indian warfare than anything seen of late. Nearly all the charges made were in woods where the enemy fought from behind trees, stone walls and natural rifle pits. A large number of our men were dismounted, and they proved themselves to be quite as great adepts in the Indian style of warfare as the enemy. As the latter were driven out of one piece of timber, they would skedaddle into another, and thus the contest was kept up, from early morning until about 4 o'clock P. M., almost without intermission. During the early portion of the day, the brigade commanded by Col. GREGG was alone engaged. During the day Gen. KILPATRICK's command came up, and, at a later hour, the regular cavalry, which had been sent up the Snicker's Gap road, made a sudden dash upon the left flank of the enemy, creating quite a panic among the Johnny Rebs. As the regulars passed up the Snicker's Gap pike, a squadron of the First cavalry was placed to guard the bridge across Goose Creek. The main column had been gone only a short time, when the guard was attacked by a superior force, and driven away, when the bridge was set on fire. The First Maine, Tenth, Second and Fourth New-York, Fourth and Sixteenth Pennsylvania, did most of the skirmishing to-day. The First Maine made 5 charges, under the most unfavorable circumstances, and added new laurels to their fame. Our loss in killed and wounded, yesterday and to-day, will probably not exceed fifty, and of the whole number there are not half a dozen wounds of a serious character. On the other hand, at the close of the day, there were thirty of the enemy's dead and wounded at the hospital—a majority of the wounds being of a serious character. Some forty prisoners were captured, including six officers—a Lieutenant-Colonel, a Major, a Captain and three Lieutenants. When the Tenth New-York entered Middleburgh, yesterday, they found five of the missing First Rhode Island troopers locked up in a store, their captors not having an opportunity even to parole or carry them off, so sudden was the charge into the town made.

Some of our officers are known to have been killed to-day, but the names of only the following have been obtained as yet: Lieut. George S. Kimball, Co. E, First Maine cavalry; Lieut. Neville, Co. E, First Maine cavalry; Lieut. Taylor, Co. F, First Maine cavalry; Lieut. Ed. S. Hawes, Co. F, Tenth New-York cavalry. The following named non-commissioned officers were also killed: Sergt. Hawkes, Co. F, First Maine; Sergt. Bryant, Co. K, First Maine; Corp. Neil, Co. C, First Maine. Privates Hurd and Decker were killed in the battle of the 17th, at Aldie, and Ord. Sergt. Hall, all of Co. H, First Maine, wounded, has since died; Sergt. Wm. Crampton, Co. H, Second New-York.

Annexed is a list of the wounded, so far as ascertained:

IMPORTANT FROM PORT HUDSON.

Gen. Banks' Report of Operations to the 14th.

Another Assault on the Rebel Works.

New and Important Positions Gained.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, June 24.

Dispatches from Gen. BANKS have been received by the War Department, to the effect that on the 14th instant, having established his batteries within 350 yards of the rebel works at Port Hudson, after a vigorous cannonade, he summoned Gen. GARDNER to surrender. On his refusal an assault was made, and our forces gained positions within 50 to 100 yards of the enemy's works, which they hold.

Gen. PAINE was severely wounded.

Gen. BANKS expressed himself confident of success.

FORTRESS MONROE, Tuesday, June 23.

The gunboat James Adger and the sloop-of-war Tuscarora arrived in Hampton Roads last evening.

The steamer Conway arrived this forenoon from Newbern, N. C., and reports no news from that Department.

The James Adger sailed from Hampton Roads this afternoon, also the transport John Brooks.

The Fifth Massachusetts regiment arrived here today from Newbern, N. C., whose term had expired. They have to-day volunteered their services to Gen. DIX, and enter at once into the service under the Generals commanding.

The transport City of Albany, from New-York on the 18th, reports at Norfolk having seen the masts of a schooner bearing southeast half east from Cape Henlopen light, about four miles distant, fifteen feet out of water.

The contrabands are being removed from Suffolk and vicinity to Norfolk in large numbers, and placed in charge of Dr. BROWN, of Norfolk.

The Pennsylvania Invasion.

PROCLAMATION BY GOV. PARKER OF NEW JERSEY.

The following Proclamation appears in the New-Jersey papers:

Whereas, the necessity no longer exists for "the citizens of the State to meet and organize into companies, and report to the Adjutant-General of the State as soon as possible, to be organized into regiments as the Militia of New-Jersey, and press forward to the assistance of Pennsylvania in this emergency," according to my proclamation of the 17th inst.—

I therefore direct that the troops raised in accordance with the said proclamation be honorably discharged, and return to their respective places of enrollment, to be mustered out and paid for the service they have performed. The Companies are requested to retain their present organization, as their services may be needed again at any moment. All vouchers for necessary expenses incident to raising said troops will be forwarded without delay, through the proper staff officers, for approval and payment.

The promptness with which the citizens of this State responded to the appeal of the Governor of Pennsylvania for aid in repelling the threatened invasion of that State, deserves the commendation of all patriots and lovers of the Union.

Thanks are especially due the Twenty-third and Twenty-seventh regiments, (returned volunteers,) for having so promptly taken the field to resist the threatened invasion, without returning to their homes, from which they had so long been separated.

Given under my hand and privy seal, at Trenton, the twenty-second day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three.

JOEL PARKER.

(Attest,)

S. M. DICKINSON, Private Secretary.

In its comments upon this document, the Trenton Republican says:

"We do not like to give currency to rumors which are afloat, in reference to this matter, most of which are, no doubt, unfounded. We have, however, heard that the New-Jersey troops are recalled because of some disagreement between the Governors of New-Jersey and Pennsylvania. If this is true—and we have reason to believe that it is—it only affords another proof of the impossibility of raising and managing a large army by State authority alone.

Physical and Metaphysical Analysis of its Spirit and Condition.

THE ARMY READY FOR WORK.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND, MURFREESBORO, Tenn., Wednesday, June 17, 1863.

If one can hardly hope at this date to arrest popular attention by anything short of the shock of battle, I am sure there are still many of a more thoughtful cast, who, knowing that battle is but the concentrated expression of all the moral and material forces of an army, feel the importance of an appreciation of those forces at rest, in order rightly to understand them when put forth in the fierce climax of war.

If we may be allowed to draw an analogy from the language of the physical sciences, we may say that the dynamical manifestations of an army will always be controlled by its statical condition, and that, without some knowledge of the latter, it is impossible rightly to judge the former.

In numerous letters written from the Army of the Potomac, I have tried to make the public acquainted with what we may call the anatomy and physiology of that army. I propose to do something of the same kind for the Army of the Cumberland. I can, however, from my brief stay here, give you little more than the most generalized impressions.

And, after all, when we say the anatomy and physiology of an army, we hardly use a figure of speech. For it would be to quite misconceive the true nature of an army to think of it in any other light than as an organic structure—with its parts, members, functions, vital spirit and animating soul. An army is something more than the sum of the individual musket-bearers in red or blue that compose it, just as the body is more than the individual atoms that compose it. Organization, that is, organic arrangement, incorporates these atoms in the subordination of their functions and members, and animates them with a living soul. And finally—to dismiss hastily these speculative considerations—just as we remark that the higher forms of animal life are distinguished by the ascendency of the spiritual over the material parts, so an army is peculiarly under this governance. "In war," said the greatest modern master of the art, "the moral is for three parts, the physical for but one," and it is a profound aphorism which should never be forgotten. It is a well-known law that momentum is equivalent to the mass multiplied by the velocity—by virtue of which principle a small body, endowed with rapid movement, has all the effect of a much larger one moving at a slower rate. In an army, the mass is a constant, but the velocity is a variable quantity, depending on the spirit, fire, élan—in a word, on the morale of the troops.

II.

THE SPIRIT OF THE SOLDIERS.

The morale of an army is a subtle something—difficult to express in a formula, and yet a palpable and powerful presence. In this, indeed, it resembles the imponderable forces which, while inappreciable by material weight or measure, are yet the potent, pervading principalities and powers of earth and air.

But, indeed, to one coming from the Army of the Potomac to the army in Tennessee, there is small need of any refined processes of discrimination. The difference, as the French say, saut aux yeux, strikes one at a glance. Recurring to the analogy traced between an army and a living creature, I have often thought that one could detect in the physiognomy of an army something analogous to those outward manifestations of the inward moods of men which we call "expressions of countenance." Now the impression one gets from the Army of the Cumberland is unmistakably that which comes from a contented, victorious, spirited temper. I was prepared to see a great difference in this respect, between the Western troops and the Army of Virginia; but I confess I was not prepared for so great a difference. All that can be conveyed by saying, that this army "is in fine condition," that "its morale is excellent," &c., I wish to convey in the largest and most emphatic sense. And it may be possible, though very briefly, to indicate how this is and comes to be.

And it should not be omitted at the start, to state that the men trace much of their well-being to the fact, that this army has been, in great part, removed from those influences that have made that poor Army of the Potomac the football of Washington intrigue and folly, and of military gambling and incompetence. Freed from these malign powers, they have, at the same time, escaped that spirit of intrigue, rivalry, jealousy, carping and croaking, that has so long demoralized and bedeviled that army.

Thus left alone, they have won victories, and these, reacting as they always do on the temper of the men, have given that confidence, that spirit—in a word, that "habit of victory" that goes so far toward the winning of new victories. It is true that no great battle has been fought by this army since that of Stones River, five months ago; but this interval has been filled up with a great number of minor infantry and cavalry engagements, in which what is peculiar is that our side has been invariably successful. These do not resound as great battles do, but they are talked of by the men, and have a most inspiriting effect. In the Army of the Potomac you constantly meet men who will tell you, "I have been in a dozen battles and been chased all the time; I should like to see, for once, how it feels to chase as well as to be chased?" You see nothing of this kind here. The men are in the habit of chasing. And it is worthy of remark that whatever may be the considerations that either prompt or retard an immediate advance from this point, the troops, at least, are unanimously eager to have another chance at the enemy.

Another item in the account is the rigid military justice that prevails. Deserters are shot.

spies are hung—not sent up to Washington to be pardoned. In consequence, desertion is here a thing almost unknown.

Above all, the army has an entire and perfect confidence in the Commanding General—a quality which, unless it be present, must, as we have so often seen, paralyze even the finest of armies. The quality of Gen. ROSECRANS' mind is an entirely military spirit, superposed on a deep and broad foundation of moral principle; and he has had the faculty to infuse into his troops something of that same present sense of duty, that earnestness, that utter abhorrence of the rebellion and all its accursed appurtenances; and that same lofty patriotism that so eminently mark his own nature—forces which are certainly just as real and just as potent as those which we can measure and which meet the eye.

III.

ORGANIZATION OF THE ARMY.

The present organization of the Army of the Cumberland was made immediately after the battle of Murfreesboro. Prior to the assignment of Gen ROSECRANS to the command, it had been designated the "Army of the Ohio," and it had only a divisional organization. On the formation of the Department of the Cumberland, this army was styled the "Fourteenth Army Corps." Early in January, however, an order of the War Department formed the command into three corps, —designated respectively the Fourteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-first corps. The Fourteenth corps is commanded by Major-Gen. THOMAS; the Twentieth by Major-Gen. MCCOOK, and the Twenty-first by Major-Gen. CRITTENDEN.

Gen. MCCOOK'S corps forms the right wing of the army; Gen. THOMAS' the centre; Gen. CRITTENDEN'S the left; beside this there is a force of reserves.

The hierarchy of this, as of all modern armies, is by regiment, brigade, division, corps—two or more of each constituting a unit of the succeeding order.

Experience in this war has proved that the corps is the best permanent independent fraction of an army for discipline and service. There are French military writers who assert that as a general thing it is more advantageous to compose the army solely of divisions. But in this army the divisional organization was found to produce the evils of an excessive scattering or distribution of power. On the other hand, the adoption of a higher unit than the corps, namely, the Grand Division, composed of two corps, was found in the Army of the Potomac, to produce the contrary evil of an excessive centralization of power.—each Grand Division being an army of itself, while the General Commander was almost cut off from any vital connection with his command.

The organization of our corps hardly corresponds in all respects to that of European armies. For example, the cavalry is massed, instead of each corps and division containing a portion of troops of the three arms. The distribution of the artillery is by corps, divisions and brigades. The brigade batteries, however, are only semi-attached.

By this regular distribution of power, duties and functions through the corps, divisions and brigades—the smaller circle within the larger, and the relations of the members vital or organic —the incredible complication and accumulation of business incident to a great army, are brought within governance, and the whole of the vast machinery moves even with ease.

In general, before going into the discussion of the three arms in detail, it is due to remark that the five months that have passed since the last great battle here, have been assiduously spent in organizing, drilling and disciplining this force—in bringing it out of the chaos in which Gen. ROSECRANS found it, and making it more of an army and less of a mob. This quiet work, it is true, does not ring in the public ear, and is probably hardly even thought of by the country; but it is, after all, this silent training which gives victories. The result of these months of hard work has been immense on this army, and its effects will be demonstrated the moment the army enters upon an active campaign.

IV.

THE STAFF AND A GENERAL STAFF CORPS.

I have so often written of the deficiency of a Staff Corps in the Army of the Potomac, that little more need be said than that the same criticism applies fully to this army. Indeed, in the European sense of a General Staff (Etat-Major) not one of our armies has anything of the kind. And this too in the face of the fact that all the considerations that make a staff necessary in the European military organizations weigh with tenfold force in the American system of warfare.

The best that can be said in this case is that the lack is thoroughly realized by the Commanding General and the more intelligent officers, and that the subject is being eagerly talked of and inquired into. The efficiency of all our armies will be doubled when this great desideratum is supplied.

The present staff of Gen. ROSECRANS consists of the Chief of the Administrative Departments and the Aids. The Chief of Staff is Brig.-Gen. GARFIELD, an accomplished soldier, with an immense talent for bureau business, while he is at the same time an able lieutenant in the field. The Chief of Artillery, Col. Burnett; Chief of Cavalry, Maj.-Gen. Stanley; Chief Engineer, Brig.-Gen. Morton; Inspector-General, Lieut.-Col. Ducat; Adjutant-General, Lieut.-Col. Goddard; Chief Quartermaster, Lieut.-Col. Taylor; Chief Commissary, Lieut.-Col. Simmons; Provost-Marshal, Maj. Miles; Judge-Advocate, Capt. Brook; Chief of Ordnance, Capt. Porter; Chief Signal Officer, Capt. Merrill; Senior Aids, Col. McKibbon and Maj. Bond.

It will be seen from this list that the Staff consists either of officers whose duties are mainly those of the Bureau and administration, or of Aids who, though brave young men, are really little more than couriers. The Chiefs of Departments, it is true, act as Aids on the battle-field, and lend all the weight of their personal ability to the execution of the General's plans; but this does not and cannot make up for the radical lack of a regularly organized General Staff Corps.

"A good Staff," says JOMINI, the best of theoretical writers on the art of war, and who himself won fame, first as Chief of Staff of NEY, and afterward of the Emperor ALEXANDER,—"a good Staff is, more than all, indispensable to the constitution of an army; for it must be regarded as the nursery where the Commanding General can raise his principal supports—as a body of officers whose intelligence can aid his own. When harmony is wanting between the genius that commands and the talents of those who apply his conceptions, success cannot be sure, for the most skillful combinations are destroyed by faults in execution. * * * A well-appointed Staff is to an army what a skillful Minister is to a monarchy—it seconds the views of the chief, even though it be in condition to direct all things of itself; it prevents the commission of faults, even though the commanding General be wanting in experience, by furnishing him good councils. How many mediocre men, of both ancient and modern times, have been rendered illustrious by achievements which were mainly due to their associates. REGNIER was the chief cause of the victories of PICHEGRU, in 1794, and DESSOLES, in like manner, contributed to the glory of MOREAU. Is not Gen. TOLL associated with the successes of KUTUSOF? DIEBITSCH with those of BARCLAY and WILGENSTEIN? GNEISENAU and MUFFLING with those of BLUCHER?"

It is needless to say that staff officers should not only be men of superior intelligence, but of a special education for this department. They should, of course, be thoroughly trained in the three arms, acquainted with logistics, or the science of moving armies, versed in topographical engineering, and, above all, gifted with the coup d'œil militaire. It follows that, in respect of rank, they should be of such consideration as will enable them with propriety to act, as they often must, for the Commanding General. And, while it is true that we have no schools of the staff from which we can draw trained men, and, while there is little reason to hope that we shall ever see such combinations as when a BERTHIER and a SOULT were Chief of Staff to NAPOLEON, or a JOMINI to NEY and ALEXANDER, yet there are many instructed officers, especially from among those in the artillery and engineer service, whence it would be possible to draw in the formation of a General Staff.

V.

THE INFANTRY.

The infantry of course constitutes, in this as in all other services, by far the most numerous and important portion of an army—four-fifths, in fact, of the entire force; the "arm of battles," the "sinews of the army," as NAPOLEON called it, though the artillery has received an immense development in modern times, and we are only now finding out how much we need cavalry.

Most European nations keep up the division of infantry of the line and light infantry. We have no such division—our troops being all armed, clothed and drilled alike.

The necessities of the case have, of course, given us a great variety of arms, both of European and American manufacture. Effort, however, has been made to preserve a uniformity of calibre in the arms of regiments and brigades; also to have the rifled arm, and indeed most of the troops of this army are provided with this arm.

In regard to the general physiognomy of this Western army, and that of course includes the drill, discipline, equipment, dress, etc., and comparing it with that of the great army of the East, there is so much general resemblance, and I have as yet had so few opportunities of making a detailed study, that it would be hazardous to say much. In all that constitutes the morale this army has undoubtedly the advantage; and yet it is due to say of that grand Army of the Potomac, which one cannot help admiring, maugre all its misfortunes, (perhaps, even a little, on account of those misfortunes,) that it has more of the soldiery air, more of the purely military spirit, than its brothers-in-arms of the West.

It would be a great mistake, however, to confound the army of the Cumberland in its present condition with what it was last year. Since the battle of Murfreesboro, in fact, this is a new army. Drill, discipline and rigorous inspections have done and are doing their work, and when this army moves it will be with a power it never possessed before.

I have seen in this army no volunteer regiments equal to some of the "crack" regiments of the Army of the Potomac—WARREN'S Zouaves, for instance—and yet I witnessed the other day a division drill, with bayonet and skirmish practice, which I never saw excelled.

In the European service it is customary to assign special troops for skirmish service. There is no need of this here, as all these troops understand this well, and have arrived at a high degree of perfection in this important branch of military service. What I have not been able to understand, however, is the absence of sharpshooters, which, by a little practice, might easily be obtained in any desired numbers, for with proper discipline the Western hunters are fitted to make the best tirailleurs in the world.

If the whimsical remark of Marshal SAXE be true, that the power of the army lies in its legs, this army should claim a high place—for an extended and protracted practice has brought it to a high degree of perfection in marching. Marches have been made by this army with a rapidity and on an extent of theatre that will compare with the greatest in military history.

VI.

THE CAVALRY.

In the remarks on the general organization of the army, it has been mentioned that the cavalry of the army of the Cumberland, instead of being distributed among the corps, is all massed in a separate corps, forming two divisions of horse, under Maj.-Gen. STANLEY. The object of this is to give greater ensemble and mobility to the operations of this important arm of service. It is true that corps composed of a single arm are an exception; nevertheless, under NAPOLEON, corps composed exclusively of cavalry existed, and our present cavalry force can hardly be said to violate the maxim of that great master, that "beyond twenty-four squadrons, a body of cavalry loses the qualities which constitute the chief excellence of that arm—namely, the power of command, opportuneness of movement, celerity and precision in execution."

The cavalry force of this army is small—much smaller than it should be. Yet Gen. ROSECRANS has had the greatest difficulty in obtaining what he has. He is now making herculean efforts to procure more.

While out the other day within the lines of the rebel army, under a flag of truce, I met an intelligent Confederate cavalry officer belonging to an Alabama regiment, and he remarked that we had both made the mistake during the early stages of the war, of undervaluing the cavalry, and he cited in illustration the fact that "several splendid regiments of troopers which had been raised in his part of the country had to be disbanded, as the authorities would not accept them." We were guilty of the same delusion, but the rebels got over it sooner than we did. And the result is that BRAGG has now as large a body of horse on each wing of his army as we have altogether.

There are several reasons why we should have the maximum proportion of cavalry which experience has shown to be demanded. And these, too, in addition to the military considerations which dictate that an army should contain a cavalry force in the proportion of one-sixth the force of the infantry arm. I add that these reasons apply with especial force to the theatre of war in which this army is now operating. First, there is the necessity of furnishing protection to the large body of persons in Middle Tennessee, who are at heart loyally disposed, or at least are indisposed to render any assistance to the rebellion, but who are overawed by the ranging bands of the enemy, and are now being rapidly swept into the ranks by the implacable conscription. Secondly, there is the importance of commanding the forage and subsistence supplies now rapidly ripening in the rich and fertile region of Middle Tennessee, and which the rebels will of course possess, if we do not. In order to accomplish these two great desiderata, it is of course indispensable that we should, while holding our front, command a large area in advance and on the flanks; and this can only be done by a powerful force of troopers. Finally, there is the crowning consideration of being able to cut the railroad lines on which the rebel army is dependent for its supplies. It is not too much to say that an adequate force of efficient cavalry—say twenty thousand horse—would enable us to clear the rebel army out of the entire State of Tennessee in a fortnight, without even a battle! It only remains to add that the attempts to obtain this adequate force have always encountered the most persistent opposition at Washington.

If current reports that BRAGG has as many as from twenty-five to thirty regiments of cavalry in his army be true, the enemy is assuredly our superior, numerically, in this arm. But it is certain that our cavalry is greatly the superior in morale. This has been tested here in a hundred fights, and, in fact, continues to be tested almost every day. They never attempt to stand one of our charges: when our horsemen charge, the rebel troopers invariably run. They are, as a general rule, miserably armed, carrying simply the shot-gun and the Enfield rifle shortened—very few indeed having either sabre, carabine or revolver. Our own men, on the contrary, are splendidly equipped.

Taken as a whole, I have no hesitation in saying that the volunteer cavalry of the Army of the Cumberland is decidedly superior to that of the Army of the Potomac. The men, as might be supposed from the habits of Western life, are much better riders, and understand the care of horses, and the animals are in noticeably good condition.

VII.

THE ARTILLERY.

The organization of artillery is by corps, divisions, and brigades, with their respective chiefs of artillery. In addition, there is an unattached portion styled the "reserve artillery." The whole is under the General Chief of Artillery; but the officer in this, as in our other armies, is simply a staff officer, who has in charge the administration of the artillery service. He does not command the artillery—not even in the sense in which the Chief of Cavalry commands the cavalry.

Gen. ROSECRANS' great stroke in massing his artillery when his right was broken, at the battle of Murfreesboro, (an operation, by the way, precisely similar to that at Wagram, when NAPOLEON threw a battery of a hundred pieces into the gap left by the withdrawal of MASSENA'S corps, and thus held in check the Austrian centre,) inspired the thought of giving a truly organic arrangement of this arm, and this important work has been diligently pursued since then.

The artillery force of this army is very strong—if we should judge by theoretical writers, we might even say too much so. The proper proportion of artillery to the other arms has been much discussed, and has varied in different wars. It is generally asserted that much artillery is a confession of weakness and want of confidence in the infantry. But since the time of NAPOLEON—who invaded Russia with a thousand pieces—the tendency has been toward masses of artillery; and both the nature of our theatre of war and the nature of the war itself, dictate a heavy force in this arm.

The artillery officers of this army are, with few exceptions, volunteers. One misses here that immense number of young graduates of the Academy, of from two to ten years' standing—men of high professional culture—in which the Army of the Potomac is so rich. The volunteer officers are, however, rapidly making themselves efficient commanders of batteries.

VIII.

QUARTERMASTERS, MEDICAL, INSPECTORS' DEPARTMENTS, &c.

The Quartermaster and Commissary departments belong properly to that comprehensive branch of military science, which the older writers called Logistics, which comprises the order and details of marches and camps, and of quartering and supplying troops.

The maxim of FREDERICK the Great, that "an army, like a serpent, moves upon its belly," reveals all the importance of these departments.

The Commissary Department is of course closely connected with the Quartermasters' Department, although in this army the Subsistence Department is independent of the Quartermasters' Department, except for transportation. This important branch of the service is under most admirable system, and there probably never was an army more fully supplied, both for present and future use. The rations of the men are as follows: hard bread or flour, (the brigade bakeries exchanging bread for flour pound for pound)—meat, (fresh 1½ lbs. per day, salt meat ¾ lb., three-fifths salt meat, two-fifths fresh meat per week)—beans, peas, rice, hominy—coffee 8 lbs. per 100 rations, tea 1½ lbs. to 100 rations (the proportion being about one-quarter to three-quarters of coffee)—sugar 15 lbs. per 100 rations—soap, candles, salt—potatoes and desiccated vegetables occasionally. This ration is very liberal—in fact too much, and the men cannot eat it all when they eat their utmost. Accordingly, the companies save a portion (about one-sixth of the entire ration) for which they receive company-saving-vouchers, and these are turned into money. The intelligent and efficient Chief of the Commissary Department thinks it would be much better if we would return to the old standard of ration—about one-sixth less than the present, and make it up by potatoes and onions. The onion, especially, is the greatest of all vegetables for the soldier. The cost of a daily ration (transportation included) is a fraction under 20 cents. At the commencement of the war it was 13. Cause, the premium on gold.

The system of flag and light signals is the same as that employed in the Army of the Potomac—the invention of Maj. MYERS, of Washington. The valuable field telegraph also does service in this army.

The Medical Department is also, I believe, organized after the same model as that of the Potomac army. The proportion of sick at present in this army is 9 per cent.

The system of inspection now in operation in this army is probably the most thorough and complete of any in the service. It is the creation of the Assistant Inspector-General, Lieut. Col. DUCAT, an accomplished soldier, who has, in addition, a great talent for business and administration. Since it went into operation, it has revolutionized the discipline of this army. It puts an argus eye in every regiment of the army—puts every item of the discipline—drill, equipment, arms, clothing, supplies, and all the thousand multiform ramifications of the great organism—within the hand of the Commanding General. The wants of every company in the army are made known semi-monthly and monthly—in fact every detail of the service is fully reported upon, and recommendations made thereon to the commander. The labor is great, but the results have been of immense benefit.

Such is a general survey of the organization of the noble army which Gen. ROSECRANS holds in his hand ready to launch at the enemy. When that shall be done, is of course a matter to be determined by large considerations of military policy. It should encourage the country, however, to know that the army is ready—body, heart and soul, and eager to have the commander give the inspiring word "Forward!"

No protests against the sailing or condition of any of the yachts having been submitted, the three prizes have been awarded to the sloops Minnie, Fanny and White Wing.

The tide at the time of starting was about three-fourths ebb, and the wind light from the southward. At 1 P. M. the weather was calm, soon after the wind set in variable from the southward and eastward, and then hauled to the southward and westward, blowing fresh to the close of the regatta.

A comparison of the times of sailing with the deduction of the allowances furnishes the following differences, by which alone an estimate of the correctness of the allowances given are to be entertained:

Time.—The differences between the Minnie and Fanny, 2 minutes; White Wing, 12 minutes; Plover, 13 minutes; Gipsey, 23 minutes; Annie, 26 minutes; Alpha, 27 minutes; Favorita, 28 minutes; Nettie, 30 minutes.

The difference between White Wing and Plover, 40 seconds; Fanny, 10 minutes; Gipsey, 12 minutes; Annie, 13 minutes; Alpha, 15 minutes; Favorita, 15 minutes; Nettie, 18 minutes.

The difference between the Fanny and Plover, 11 minutes; Favorita, 20 minutes; Gipsey, 22 minutes; Alpha, 25 minutes; Annie, 28 minutes; Nettie, 24 minutes.

The difference between the Favorita and Annie, 2 minutes; Nettie, 3 minutes; Gipsey, 4 minutes; Plover, 13 minutes.

The difference between the Gipsey and Annie, 2 minutes; Nettie, 7 minutes.

In the consideration of these results, it should be borne in mind that when the yachts that were last started reached Owl's Head stakeboat, that the wind had fallen so as to render them unable to stem the flood-tide then setting in through the Narrows—hence the difference in the times of sailing between the leading yachts and those last started is much greater than it would have been had they all been started together, and, consequently have been subjected to a like influence of the tide. As an exponent of the operation of "handicapping," in comparison with that of giving allowances for measurement by tonnage, areas of sails, and of hulls at water-line, it appears that the records of six previous regattas give an average difference of net time (the allowances of time in each case being deducted from the time of sailing) of 54 minues, whilst the average difference under a like rule of computation in the late regatta gives but 28 minutes.

We are, respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
(Signed,) CHAS. H. HASWELL,
FLETCHER WESTRAY,
JNO. T. ROLLINS,
Regatta Committee.

To HAMILTON MORTON, Esq., Secretary New-York Yacht Club, New-York.

Annual Regatta of the Brooklyn Yacht Club.

This interesting annual nautical event takes place to-day. The prizes offered are as follows:

First Class.—(For jib and mainsail boats,) A new and handsome barometer.

Second Class.—(For cut-rigged boats,) An oil painting of the winning boat.

The programme is as follows: The Rip Van Winkle, having on board the members of the Club and invited guests, will leave De Forrest's wharf, hard-by Fulton ferry, at 12 M. sharp, and proceed to Gowanus Bay, where the race will start at 1 P. M. precisely. The usual preparations, such as music and a collation, etc., have been made, and nothing to insure the comfort of the passengers has been left unattended.

THE TURF.

The Running Races on the Centreville Course, Long Island.

The first of the three days' races on the above Course, came off Tuesday, in presence of a limited number of spectators, owing to the failure of the Brooklyn and Jamaica Railroad to provide cars for the accommodation of the public, as advertised by the manager of the races, Capt. THOMAS G. MOORE, of Kentucky. This mistake will be rectified, by the President of the road, for the races on Thursday and Friday, and will be duly advertised.

Some of the best horses in the country are in the different stables at the course, and the four-mile dash for Thursday will be one of the most exciting events of the turf season.

There were two races yesterday; the first a sweepstakes, for three-year olds, mile heats, which closed with the following entries: Mr. F. G. MURPHY'S chestnut colt Southerner, Dr. J. W. WELDON'S bay filly Lizzie W., Dr. R. UNDERWOOD'S chestnut Vandal filly, Mr. FRANCIS MORRIS' chestnut colt Abu Beker, and Mr. F. MORRIS' bay colt Surprise. Of these, only Southerner and Lizzie W. came to the post, the betting being at three to one in favor of Lizzie W.

First Heat—Lizzie W. had the inside and about half a length the advantage at the start, in which position they made the half mile pole in 52½ seconds. In going round the three-quarter turn, Lizzie increased the distance to a couple of lengths, and maintained her lead as they passed the score in 1 minute 47¾ seconds, the filly being under a hard pull.

Second Heat.—A very even start was effected, and the horses were neck and neck nearly to the half mile, where Lizzie got her head and neck in front in 50¾ seconds, and increased her lead by half a length in going round the turn, and finally coming across the score two lengths in advance, under a strong pull, in 1 minute 48¾ seconds, and winning the race.

RECAPITULATION.

Sweepstakes for three-year-olds; mile heats; $100 entrance; half forfeit; $100 added; closed with the following entries:

J. W. WELDON'S b. f. Lizzie W., by Imp. Scythian, dam by Glencoe..... 1 1
F. G. MURPHY'S ch. c. Southerner, by Oliver, dam by Imp. Trustee..... 2 2
R. UNDERWOOD'S ch. f. by Vandal, dam by Grey Eagle..... dr.
F. MORRIS' ch. c. Abu Beker, by Mahomet, dam by Bethune..... dr.
Also, the b. c. Surprise, by Bonnie Scotland, dam Young Fashion by Monarch..... dr.
Time, 1.47¾; 1.48¾.

The second race was for a purse for all ages, mile and a quarter dash; for which were entered Capt. T. G. MOORE'S bay mare Mamona; Mr. P. C. BUSH'S brown filly Seven Oaks; and Mr. F. G. MURPHY'S gray gelding Gray Don.

The start took place from the three-quarter pole, but in consequence of the starting judge not giving the usual signal to the time keepers by dropping a flag, the horses were not timed until they crossed the score on entering the mile, which was done in 1:47½. Mamona was the favorite at five to one against Gray Don, and twenty to one against Seven Oaks, and many bets were taken at five to four on Don against Oaks.

The Race.—Don had the inside, and Seven Oaks the middle. The latter made the running from the start, closely attended upon by Mamona—the gray entirely out of the contest, which he left to the others. Seven Oaks crossed the score on entering the even mile three-quarters of her length ahead of Mamona, and increased the distance between them to fully four lengths at the half mile pole. This was gradually reduced in going round the turn, and both swung into the homestretch side by side. A smart brush to the distance stand increased Mamona's lead to a length and a half, with Seven Oaks' jockey whipping, without effect, and Mamona maintained her position easily on crossing the score, and winning the race.

RECAPITULATION.

A purse of $150 for all ages, mile and a quarter dash, for which the following entries were made:

T. G. MOORE'S b. m. Mamona, by Sovereign, dam by Glencoe, 5 years old..... 1
P. C. BUSH'S br. f. Seven Oaks, by Vandal, dam Mary, 4 years old..... 2
F. G. MURPHY'S gr. g. Gray Don, by Hornpipe, dam by Chorister, 4 years old..... 3

Many of the leading turfmen from the South and South West, as well as from our Northern States and Canada, were present.

The races to-day are a four-mile dash, for which Idlewild, Reporter, Jerome Edger and Dangerous are entered, all of which are among the best horses in the country.

There will also be a handicap purse of $150 for all ages, run for, for which there are six entries; and the cars will run from South Ferry, and also from East New-York, to and from the Course, at short intervals, by special arrangement with the President of the Railroad Company.

Fifth Great Trotting Match for $5,000 between Geo. M. Patchen and Gen. Butler.

The above event took place yesterday on the Fashion Course. The race was mile heats best three in five under saddle, and was won by Butler in three successive heats, after a very close contest throughout. A very large number of the leading turf and sporting men were present, and also a numerous attendance of other classes, among whom were a number of ladies, both on the stand and in carriages. We noticed Mr. BAKER'S fine team of Ethan and Honest Allen, Mr. BONNER'S, Mr. VANDERBILT'S, Mr. TURNBULL'S, and other fast double-teams at the Course, and also many fast single turnouts.

DAN MACE of course mounted the pigskin for Butler, whilst for a few turns on the course, D. TALLMAN backed the big stallion; but just before the start young BUDD DOBLE, the well-known rider of Rockingham, mounted Patchen for the first time in his life, and with all the disadvantage of a first appearance, lost the first heat by only three-quarters of a length, in the slow time of 2:28. This rather astonished those who had bet on 2:22, and some even on 2:21 being beat; the betting on the horses before the start having been 5 to 3 on Butler, and after the first heat 4 to 1 on him, in both cases, with few takers.

First Heat—Patchen had the inside and a slight advantage at the start, which he increased in the turn, and was a length in advance at the quarter pole, in 37 seconds. Butler broke before reaching the back stretch, and fell off two lengths, but regained it and lapped Patchen at the half-mile, in 1 minute 14½ seconds; DAN MACE testing the utmost strength of his lungs, and Patchen commencing to dance to the music of DAN'S melodious notes, of course Butler was in front, and at the new stand got off his feet and gave place to Patchen, who had been got down steadily, and was a length and half in front on entering the three-quarter turn. Butler steadily closed up the gap, and lapped at the three-quarter pole, swinging into the home stretch half a length in advance, when Patchen broke up, and, notwithstanding he was got down again, and made a splendid brush for the lead past the distance stand, Butler won the heat by three-quarters of a length—in 2:28. Every one was delighted with the splendid riding of young DOBLE, and augured better success in the next heat.

Second Heat.—Patchen had the best of the start, and led by a length and a half, and took the inside in going round the turn. He passed the quarter-pole in 35½, with Butler closing up within a quarter length, but increased the gap to an open length on the backstretch, Butler closing up within a quarter length at the half-mile in 1:10½, and making a splendid brush, by which he led by a length past the stand; Patchen gradually closing up as they came round the three-quarter turn and past the three-quarter pole, and coming down the homestretch at a tremendous pace, amidst the utmost excitement of the spectators. Just as they neared the distance stand, and were almost neck and neck, Patchen got off his feet, which MACE perceiving rather eased up for a second, and the heat was won by Butler, in the astonishing short time of 2 minutes and 21 seconds.

The encomiums on BUDD DOBLE'S riding were again universal, although it was considered a hopeless task for Patchen, who had his off hind leg bandaged when he came for the Third Heat.—Butler this time led round the turn and was half a length in front at the quarter-pole, in 35 seconds, where Butler broke and fell off four lengths, which he reduced to one on entering the back stretch, and had lapped Butler at the half mile in 1:11. The latter shook Patchen off in going round the turn, and headed him by a couple of lengths at the three-quarter pole, which was again reduced to almost shut out daylight as they approached the distance stand, when Patchen broke up again, and Butler came over the score an easy winner in 2:23¾.

The contest gave immense satisfaction; and even many losers were heard to say that they did not mind losing their money on such a race as that—everything was conducted in the fairest manner possible, and DAN MACE was presented with a mammoth bouquet about two feet high, in the form of a pyramid, which he poked at Mr. GEBER'S nose, who was so well pleased that he poked $150 back again at DAN—and as Patchen was going out of the gate, he made a demonstration for DAN'S bouquet, which the latter was displaying to some of his numerous sporting friends. We don't know what young DOBLE had presented to him, but he richly deserved something.

Between the heats a foot race took place between "Young Sport," a well-known pedestrian, and a new aspirant for fame—a smart young Irishman from the Fourteenth Ward—DENNIS MAHONY; it was once round the mile course, and was well contested, and only won by a few feet by Sport in 5 minutes and 8 seconds.

A Case of Extortion and its Consequences.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Monell.

Louisa Cadwell vs. Rollin B. Goodenough and Edward H. Hawke.—In or about the month of June, 1862, the plaintiff being about obtaining a divorce from her husband, a Dr. Cadwell, of this City, left him and took up her abode at the St. Nicholas Hotel. It appears that while there she became acquainted with the defendant Goodenough and the late Richard K. Haight, a wealthy citizen of this City, who was also at that time stopping at the same hotel. The defendant Goodenough soon after introduced her to the defendant Hawke, who, it seems, is a lawyer of this City, who commenced the contemplated action against her husband, and took from her $75 on account of $500, which was to be paid at the successful termination of the suit.

The action was duly commenced, and at this time Goodenough was acting as a special friend and adviser to the plaintiff, but at the same time introduced Dr. Cadwell, the husband, to Mr. Edwin James, who was then retained to defend the action.

The defendants then informed the plaintiff that the Doctor was about putting in his answer, in which he would charge her with adultery with Mr. Haight. Mr. Haight being informed of this, rather than have his name used publicly, commissioned defendants to make a settlement of the suit, and have it discontinued. He told Mrs. Cadwell that if she would discontinue he would settle $10,000 upon her, and purchase and furnish for her a house. The suit was accordingly discontinued. While the negotiations for settlement were being made, the plaintiff met Mr. Haight at Hawke's office, and was prevented from speaking to him by Hawke, who at that time was receiving $5,000 on account of the $10,000, of which Hawke did not then let plaintiff know of.

Some time after the death of Mr. Haight, she was then informed by his brother that the $5,000 had been paid, she went to each of defendants, who denied ever having received a dollar of the money. It is now charged that on the 1st of July, 1862, defendants obtained from Mr. Haight five promissory notes for $1,000 each, the payment of each being secured by an assignment of the lease of the Club House of Fifth-avenue.

These notes were passed out of the defendants' hands and afterward paid to the holder by the executors of Mr. Haight. Goodenough has been arrested and is about putting in bail.

Action against a Constable for an alleged wrongful Seizure.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.

Before Justice Moncrief.

John Yeomans vs. Ira C. Pierson, Patrick Malone, Michael McCann, et al.—The plaintiff brought his action to recover of the defendants for an alleged wrongful seizure and detention of the plaintiff's stock in trade, at the corner of Fourth-avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street in this city, and for ejecting the plaintiff from those premises, and taking and detaining the keys thereof for two days and two nights.

The defendant, Pierson, answered that he acted only in his official capacity as a Constable of the city and county of New-York, in making a levy upon said property, for the satisfaction of an execution against the property of one George H. Yeomans, and that he entered the place of business of George H. Yeomans and took the property in question therefrom.

The other defendants deny generally.

The case is still on.

Chauncey Shaffer and T. G. Lucky, for plaintiff; A. Lambert for the other defendants.

The Execution of a Will in Articulo Mortis.

SURROGATE'S COURT—KINGS COUNTY.

Before Surrogate Brainerd.

Mr. Henry Ruggles, a gentleman aged 70 years, died at his residence, No. 66 Cranberry-street, Brooklin, on the 15th of March last. He was a widower, without children, and was well known as a large stockholder in the Brooklyn Gas Company, and is supposed to have left property of the value of about $30,000.

Owing to the large amount involved, and the peculiar circumstances attending the execution of the will, the case attracts much attention in Brooklyn.

The heirs at law of the testator are his two brothers—William Ruggles, of Washington, D. C., James Ruggles, of Rochester, Mass.—and the children of his deceased brother Micha.

The will now before the Surrogate for probate gives to his two nieces, Mary the wife of A. S. Stotoff, and Susan the wife of C. E. Pratt, Esq., the late residence of the deceased, with the furniture. It then gives to his book-keeper, Mr. Beasley, one thousand dollars a year during his life, and five hundred dollars a year to his housekeeper during her life, and five hundred dollars to a servant, and the remainder to his brothers William and James, and the children of James in equal proportions. The Executors are his brother James, together with Mr. Pratt and Mr. Stotoff.

The subscribing witnesses are the attending physicians, Dr. John B. Johnson and Mr. J. B. Stewart, a merchant associated in business with Mr. Stotoff.

These witnesses have been examined on the part of the executors, and are relied upon to establish the validity of the will.

The children of the deceased brother Micha were omitted from the will; they contest its probate, alleging undue influence, and the incapacity of the testator to make such an instrument, he being on his death bed at the time of its execution, and near the hour of his decease.

The contestants have examined Charles A. Nichols, Esq., (the lawyer who drew the will,) and others, as witnesses.

It appears in evidence that Dr. Johnson attended deceased during his last illness, and found his diseases to be erysipelas and diabetes; that during the doctor's last visit, which was from Saturday night at about twelve o'clock until Sunday morning after four o'clock, the deceased was rapidly failing, his pulse being 130 beats per minute, his face swollen, one eye closed, the other nearly so, his hands being tremulous and nearly useless. At this visit the doctor told deceased he might not live till morning, and suggested that he should attend to his business affairs. The doctor then proceeded to draw a will for the deceased, similar to the one before the Surrogate.

While drawing this will, the Doctor sent Mr. Stotoff for a lawyer, and he returned with Mr. Nichols, who then drew the revocation and attestation clauses. The deceased was raised up in bed, but being too feble to write his name, the Doctor wrote it for him. After the execution of this first will, Lawyer Nichols said he thought it would not stand.

He then drew another substantially like the first one. After considerable delay, and after its submission to Mrs. James Ruggles and Mrs. Stotoff, it was completed and taken to the testator for execution. He declined to sign it, and objected specially to one item, but finally, after repeated solicitations, allowed the Doctor again to write his name. This second will is the one offered for probate.

Mr. Nichols, the lawyer, upon being examined, testified that he went to the room of the deceased in obedience to a message from some one, but he could not say from whom.

That he drew a will, but could not say whether he completed it or not. That he drew another will, but could not say whether he drew two or three wills. That he did not know that he had any special directions to draw a will.

That he could not recall whether the deceased used any other word than "Yes," in answer to questions put to him. That he did not remember that the first will was condemned by him.

In fact, during a long examination, this witness was unable to recollect but very little of what occurred while he was in the testator's house attending to the drawing and execution of the wills.

The cause is adjourned to June 29, when other witnesses will be examined.

The contest, according to present appearances, is likely to be a long one.

The counsel for the contestants are James R. Whiting, Jesse C. Smith, William H. Woodman and C. C. Langdale. The executors' counsel are C. E. Pratt and G. T. Jenks.

WEDNESDAY, June 24—P. M.

The ease in the supply of Money at 6@7 ₱ cent. to the Stock Brokers continued to-day, although the rule of the Street can scarcely be quoted below 7 ₱ cent. The speculative spirit on the Stock Exchange was very decided, and the orders to buy from outside parties further advanced prices on the New-York and Western Road Shares from 1 to 2 ₱ cent. The demand for Hudson River Shares for cash delivery carried the price up to 140 ₱ cent. at the early Board, making the rise in two days eleven ₱ cent., and since last week twenty-two ₱ cent. The pressure for cash Stock fell off in the afternoon. There was also an additional rise of 3½ ₱ cent. on Pacific Mail for cash delivery. The sales of Harlem old Stock were very heavy. A single Broker put out 7,000 or 8,000 shares at the First Board, at 82½@81½ ₱ cent., but the buyers being well distributed, and generally strong parties, the price rallied on these transactions at the Second Board, and finally left off at 82 ₱ cent. The demand for New-York Central and Erie was quite active at advancing figures. The Western list was also generally firm, and the Share market altogether the strongest reported for two weeks past. The changes in Government Stocks and Treasury paper were not important. The latter a fraction lower on 12 months Certificates, interest payable in Currency. At 4 o'clock the following prices were made in comparison with Tuesday night; the Share market very strong, especially on New-York Central and Michigan Southern.

The conversions of United States Currency into the New Loan of 1882 at the Treasury Office to-day amount to $1,701,150, of which $884,500 was through the Loan Agency, and the remainder, $816,650, by subscription direct. Only six business days remain for these conversions by voluntary subscriptions at par, under the provisions of the act of Congress, and there is no assurance that the same Stock will continue to be offered on equally favorable terms by the Secretary of the Treasury, after the right of conversion ceases on the 1st July. We are not advised that his financial policy after that date has yet been indicated. His balance at the New-York office increased to-day $1,100,000, and now stands $24,978,000.

The day's business at the office of the Assistant Treasurer of the United States was as follows: Receipts, $2,105,030 63, including for Customs, $222,000; Payments, $995,725 50; Balance, $24,948,553 96.

An afternoon paper publishes the following calculation in reference to the Hudson River Road:

"The earnings have been as follows for the past 8 months:

October, 1862	$239,910	October, 1861	$173,261
November, 1862	290,032	November, 1861	197,662
December, 1862	463,571	December, 1861	246,283
January, 1863	458,953	January, 1862	307,330
February, 1863	425,946	February, 1862	281,568
March, 1863	366,881	March, 1862	808,963
April, 1863	270,674	April, 1862	202,846
May, 1863	241,771	May, 1862	192,142
Total	$2,676,809	Total	$1,910,055
Increase in 8 months			766,754

The road has earned in eight months $600,000 more than its best year ever yielded before, and has now, by legitimate growth of its business, assumed its proper rank as an investment. It is now earning 30 ₱ cent. on its stock, and passes into the following list of roads earning large dividends, and its market value, instead of being remarkable on account of its advance, is to be regarded upon account of its relative cheapness compared with similar roads.

	Yearly Earnings.	Market Price.
Panama	20 ₱ cent.	191
New-Jersey Central	18 ₱ cent.	170
New-Jersey Railroad	15 ₱ cent.	140
Cleveland and Columbus	25 ₱ cent.	160
Buffalo and State Line	30 ₱ cent.	200
C. P. and Ashtabula	27 ₱ cent.	185
Camden and Amboy	16 ₱ cent.	170
Del., Lack and Western	20 ₱ cent.	172
Brooklyn City Railroad	14 ₱ cent.	150
Third-avenue	20 ₱ cent.	240

The future of the road is made secure by the fact that its largest income is in local traffic, and subject to no loss by peace, but to large gains from this cause. A short time will see cars cross the Hudson at Albany upon a bridge—an advantage of no small magnitude. The stock is not scarce, and 10,000 shares can be borrowed readily; but it cannot be bought any more freely than the ten roads in the table above. When its earnings decrease, its price will, of course, fall. That its earnings will decrease no railroad men suppose. For a few months freights will be pressed upon all the Northern roads beyond their capacity, at their own rates."

The Buffalo and State Line stockholders met on Tuesday, the 22d inst., and elected the following named Directors and Inspectors of Election:

FOR DIRECTORS.

George Palmer,	Chas. H. Lee,
Dean Richmond,	Alanson Robinson,
Milton Courtright,	Wm. Keefe,

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Our dispatches from the headquarters of Gen. HOOKER'S army, this morning, renders it positive that the bulk of the rebel army is west of the Blue Ridge. STUART'S cavalry range up and down under its eastern shadows, but Gen. PLEASANTON keeps sharp watch of him, and skirmishes occur daily. Gen. STAHL has pushed a reconnoissance to Warrenton, Sulphur Springs, Rappahannock Ford, and other points, and ascertained that there are no rebels in that direction. Gen. BUFORD, on Tuesday, went to the top of the Blue Ridge, and discovered LONGSTREET'S camp in plain sight.

Gen. SCHENCK, in Baltimore, yesterday received information that the rebels, with a considerable force of cavalry and infantry, were again threatening Frederick, being between Middletown and Boonton, crossing the South Mountain. The information from Harrisburgh and towns beyond, however, renders it probable that this is only a flanking force of EWELL'S corps, which is believed to be advancing into Pennsylvania—or at least a large portion of it. This force is reported to have left the Potomac on Friday, and to have advanced to Hagerstown on the same day. Yesterday, according to the stories of deserters, the advance was moving on Carlisle, being only twelve miles distant.

A dispatch from our Special Correspondent at Frederick proves the truth of our supposition that the occupation of South Mountain by the rebels would not be permanent. It has been evacuated, the rebels there taking the road toward Greencastle. The reports from Harrisburgh, of an advance of EWELL'S corps toward that place are fully confirmed. He has with him an immense wagon train, from which it is supposed the movement is only one for plunder, though the rebel officers proclaim that they intend to capture Harrisburgh, and then march on Philadelphia.

Our special correspondent telegraphs from Harrisburgh that the rebel cavalry under JENKINS destroyed the Scotland bridge again yesterday afternoon. Besides JENKINS' force, 12,000 of EWELL'S troops were reported to be advancing in the direction of Harrisburgh. The New-York Eighth and Seventy-first regiments were at Carlisle, and Gen. KNIPE, who was in command, wished to make a stand there, but it was thought probable the troops would fall back on the Harrisburgh defences, when the rebels approached.

Gen. COUCH is said to be concentrating a large National force at Gettysburgh, Penn., with the view of making a flank movement on the rebels.

Maj.-Gen. BROOKS, in command at Pittsburgh, has issued an order requesting the city newspapers to make no mention of military movements. As a consequence, they are religiously silent upon these topics. The city, we may add, is now considered in a complete state of defence.

Dispatches from Gen. GRANT to the 18th inst. have been received by the War Department. He says everything was then progressing well. JOE JOHNSTON'S forces were at Yazoo City, Brownsville and Clinton. Deserters were coming out of Vicksburgh daily, and they uniformly reported short rations in the city. The health and condition of the troops were excellent.

Col. HILLYER, of Gen. GRANT'S Staff, arrived in St. Louis on Sunday last. The Colonel is suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism, which compelled his return. He speaks most confidently of Gen. GRANT'S ultimate success. The Chicago Journal has certain private assurances which prepare it to hear of Gen. GRANT'S final triumph at any hour.

A rebel dispatch from Jackson, Miss., back of Vicksburgh, announces an engagement on that day at Big Black River bridge, between a National force and "JACKSON'S cavalry." The musketry and cannonading are described as "awful and terrific." Firing was also heard in the direction of Vicksburgh. A dispatch dated Panola, 18th, states that a heavy force of National cavalry was marching on Zeackona, between Panola and Granada. They were rigging rafts to cross the Tallahatchie, with the intention of destroying the railroad below Panola, and thus cutting off JOHNSTON'S supplies. Another force was crossing the Coldwater near Senatobia, proceeding from Memphis. The rebel dispatches complain of numerous accidents on the Meridian Railroad, by which the transportation of supplies has been interrupted, and JOE JOHNSTON'S movements retarded.

The War Department has received dispatches from Gen. BANKS to the 14th inst., by way of Vicksburgh and Memphis. On that day, having established his batteries within 350 yards of the rebel works at Port Hudson, after a vigorous cannonade, he summoned the rebel commander, Gen. GARDNER, to surrender. GARDNER refused, and an assault was made, resulting in our forces gaining and holding positions within 50 to 100 yards of the enemy's works. In the assault Gen. PAINE was severely wounded. Gen. BANKS was confident of success.

The pirate bark Tacony is making sad havoc among the Massachusetts fishermen. On Monday afternoon, about forty miles east-southeast from Chatham, she ran among a fleet of about thirty, and is known to have destroyed at least four of them. At last accounts a United States steamer was cruising in the vicinity, and the pirate may be overhauled. The Alabama and Virginia were at Bahia on the 14th of May—the latter with no armament.

A dispatch from Newport, R. I., announces the destruction of a dozen more fishing vessels by the Tacony, back of Martha's Vineyard, everything of value being previously taken from them. At 8 o'clock yesterday evening she was committing her depredations off No Man's Land.

We have a report from Porto Rico, published in the Boletin of the 3d inst., that the Vanderbilt has had a fight with the Alabama at Santa Cruz. The news that the Alabama was at Santa Cruz was taken to St. Thomas, where the Vanderbilt happened to be, by the English mail steamer, and the Vanderbilt immediately started to find her. Loud cannonading was subsequently heard, but the result of the fight, if there was one, is not yet known.

GENERAL NEWS.

Later news from Mexico, by way of Havana, is received, but it is not important. The escape of ORTEGA and other Mexican officers from Orizaba is confirmed. ORTEGA and his companions were at Jalapa on the 29th ult., and intended to leave immediately for the Capital. The resignation of COMONFORT had been received by the Government. Preparations for the defence of the Capital, even to inundating the valley, were proceeding with vigor. Gen. GARZA was in command of the defences. The French headquarters had been removed from Puebla, a garrison of 4,000 men only remaining. MARQUEZ, in the French interest, is said to have moved toward the Capital with 7,000 men, and the French General, BAZAINE, with 9,000.

Coroner COLLIN held an inquest yesterday at the Fourth Precinct Station-house, upon the body of JOSEPH NIXON, who was shot at a late hour on Tuesday night in Cherry-street, by WALTER D. BELL, an officer in the United States navy. The testimony went to show that for more than two years past, there had been a difficulty between them, and that the deceased had repeatedly expressed an intention to take the prisoner's life at the first opportunity. The prisoner had been informed of this intention and when he was attacked by the deceased on Tuesday night he drew his revolver and fired three shots, killing him almost instantly. BELL has been committed to the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The City Inspector, yesterday, met the Ward Inspectors at his office, and directed them to see that the streets in their respective districts are thoroughly and immediately cleaned, and kept clean. They would be held sternly responsible for any dereliction of duty. If interfered with by outside organizations, the whole power of the Police, and, that failing, of the military, would be called in to sustain them. Large bodies of men are actively employed in all sections of the City.

The Committee on National Affairs have fixed upon Saturday, as the occasion for the reception of the Twenty-fifth New-York Volunteers. The ceremonies will include a review by the Mayor and Common Council, and a banquet at the City Assembly Rooms.

The Louisvile Journal commences the publication of Gen. BUELL'S review of the evidence before the Military Commission. The first installment, which occupies over four columns of the Journal, covers the period from Gen. BUELL'S appointment to the command of the Department on Nov. 9, 1861, to the latter part of July, 1862.

Gen. DEVENS is now in Worcester, Mass. He is still unable to walk, and it will probably be five or six weeks before he will fully recover the use of his foot.

The gunboat Monticello arrived at the Philadelphia Navy-yard, for repairs, on Tuesday afternoon, from Cape Fear River, via Hampton Roads.

A hippopotamus, attached to a traveling menagerie, broke out of his cage while en route for Buffalo to Detroit, for the sake of taking a bath in the water of Lake Erie. His keeper managed to decoy him to shore by throwing into the water a dog to which the animal was strongly attached, and then he was secured without difficulty.

The Stock Market continued to rise yesterday on the speculative list; prices were 1@2 ₱ cent. higher than on Tuesday. The sales of United States Loan of 1882 amounted to $1,701,000. Money easy at 6@7 ₱ cent. Exchange, 156¼; Gold, 143¾ ₱ cent.

Breadstuffs and Provisions attracted less attention yesterday, at, in most instances, somewhat easier prices. Cotton was very brisk, and decidedly higher. Whisky was heavy and drooping. A fair business was reported in Hay, Coal, Wool, Tallow, Sugar, Molasses, Hides and Leather, at full prices. Refined Petroleum was more sought after, mainly for future delivery, and was rather dearer. The movements in other articles were limited. Less extensive Freight engagements were reported, with 631 vessels, of all classes, in port.

The Copperheads Before the Enemy.

Our military correspondent at Harrisburgh, in a letter which we published yesterday, made the statement that

"Copperheadism is by no means extinct in Harrisburgh, much less at Chambersburgh and towns beyond. Traitors are daily and hourly employed in gathering information and transmitting the same to the enemy. Farmers taking their horses and cattle to the mountains for safety are tracked by those despicable minions of treason, who seize the first opportunity to let the rebels know where they can make a haul. The Copperheads utter their sentiments openly and boldly, and almost invite the rebels to partake of their hospitality, and yet they are allowed to walk the streets and enjoy all the privileges of loyal citizens."

Similar representations are given by other correspondents, and there need be no doubt that they are all founded on fact.

We have here a veritable exhibition of the Copperhead spirit in free practical action. Hitherto it has had no good opening. The distance of the rebels has precluded any practical cooperation, except in a very indirect way. Little could be done except to foment faction, and throw obstacles in the way of the Government. But the march of the rebels into a Northern State gives an opportunity for serving them more directly; and the opportunity is seized at once. While the loyal men of Pennsylvania are filled with mingled dismay and shame in the presence of the vile horde of rebel invaders, these Copperheads welcome them with undisguised pleasure, fraternise with them, supply them with all desired information, conduct them to the hidden property of loyal neighbors, and in every possible way, short of actually enlisting in the rebel ranks, help them on in their hostile work. If to "give aid and comfort to the enemies of the United States" constitutes treason, as the Constitution declares, these Pennsylvania Copperheads make themselves as complete traitors as JEFF. DAVIS himself.

But what difference is there between the Copperheads of Southern Pennsylvania and those of any other region in the North? Has anybody ever heard that the opposition to the Government there was in any way distinguished from the opposition in New-York, or Maine, or Illinois? Have there been any special influences at work there unknown elsewhere? Nothing of the kind can be pretended. The copperheadism of Southern Pennsylvania is of the common type, and is simply possessed of the common spirit. The difference in its action comes only from a difference in opportunity. If a rebel column were to march into any Northern State, we might almost say into any Northern county, it would surely find some creatures vile enough to serve it precisely as these Pennsylvania Copperheads are now serving LEE'S advance. Just as in the Revolution, there was not a colony, nor hardly a neighborhood, without its Tories, just so now, enemies of the public cause are to be found everywhere. And, just as then, wherever the British penetrated, whether at one end of the country or at the other, in this direction or in that, they were certain to meet a class of men to welcome and aid them, just so the rebels would be sure of friends and auxiliaries wherever they might reach. The land swarms with Copperheads that require but the touch of the lance of ROBERT LEE to start up as full-grown traitors on the spot, as the spear of Ithuriel developed the "squat" toad into the devil.

We are not sure, however, that ROBERT LEE would soil his lance with them, even when found in his path. At least, as we are assured by our correspondent, his Lieutenant, JENKINS, "treats the Copperheads with perfect contempt." JENKINS, though a rebel, manifestly has some manly stuff in him. He hates the slime of those creeping creatures about as intensely, it would seem, as loyal men hate their venom. He understands perfectly the essential vileness of the nature that can thus lick the dust before the feet of a hostile invader. The Southerners, though rebellious, are Americans yet; the old American blood still courses in their veins, and we can well fancy that every drop of it recoils in disgust from such a degradation of the American nature.

But, after all, whatever the "contempt" the rebel leaders feel for this groveling species, the temptation to use them for their advantage can hardly be resisted. Their work can be turned to very important military account; and all the world knows that this is the prime consideration with the soldier, whatever the private feelings might prompt. So far as relates to plunder, we suppose the rebels would not care much about availing themselves of the help of the Copperheads; but when it comes to "gathering and transmitting information," their service becomes at once of the utmost military value. Being in an enemy's country, such information is indispensable to them if they would avoid surprise and overthrow. If they could not get it otherwise they would have to detail spies from their own camps, who should penetrate our lines and secure it at the risk of their lives. But the Copperheads can serve as spies far more effectively than could any strangers to the country. They know just where and how to get their information, and can go where they please in perfect security and freedom. One smart Copperhead within Gen. COUCH'S lines can make himself worth a dozen regular spies. It is too much to expect of a soldier's nature to presume that JENKINS, with all his "contempt," does not yet mainly rely upon these creatures for his intelligence of Gen. COUCH'S movements and plans. There are a thousand things within the rebel lines that our Generals would be glad to learn from even the meanest source, and we are bound to suppose that the rebel Generals would not be a whit the more particular.

The practical question to the Government and to all loyal men is, how far this impunity of the Copperheads is to go. It is not a matter easily determined. What WASHINGTON did, and what JACKSON did, under similar circumstances, is well enough known; but they exercised a power which our own Generals don't at all like to assume. The day a military hand is put upon one of these Pennsylvania Copperheads, the whole species of every size and hue throughout the land begin to emit their venom against the Government as a tyranny not to be tolerated. And yet civil process is powerless to reach him in season to stop his mischief, or even to punish it afterward; for it would be almost impossible fairly to impannel a jury of twelve men upon which some political sympathizer with the accused would not be found who would make conviction impossible. We well know the short shrift a Union man within a rebel State would get who should thus be found by the rebel authorities—whether military or civil—aiding the Union arms. There has never been any such rigor here, and we don't know that it is possible. Probably public opinion must be the main reliance; and yet it, at best, is a very poor one—for the man who is mean enough to betray his country is very sure to be shameless enough to defy public opinion. The very fact that he continues to serve JENKINS, notwithstanding the "perfect contempt" that rebel has for him, indicates how little he would care for the contempt of loyal men.

Ravages in War.

When Gen. GRANT lately ordered the ravaging of a large section of country between Vicksburgh and Canton, he took a step not only necessary in itself, but justified by the laws of war. It was done purely for military purposes. JOHNSTON'S army was on the verge of the ravaged region, was drawing supplies from it, and in case of an advance toward GRANT'S rear, the provisions, the mills, manufactories and bridges between the Yazoo and Big Black Rivers would be of the greatest service to him. To destroy them was to retard the advance of the enemy, if not to make it altogether impracticable. This, therefore, we say, was an instance of justifiable devastation.

There are other instances when, for other military reasons, the devastation of a district of country is justifiable in time of war.

But wanton devastation of a country is never justifiable—at least, not by the rules of civilized warfare, much less by those which govern in such a war as that now carried on in and by the United States.

Some of the recent expeditions of Col. MONTGOMERY from the Georgia seaboard inland seem to come under this head. If our troops down there, white or black, need provisions, it is proper to push into the country and take them. If there are rebel supply depots or factories there, it is proper to burn them. If there are slaves who can be freed or made serviceable in any way, it is proper to push in and fetch them out. If it is proposed to conduct extensive military operations inland, and it be necessary to clear their way by the torch, that might be proper. If it is necessary to reconnoitre a country, and the people in any hamlet or house fire upon or kill our troops, it may be proper to make an example of that hamlet or house. But it is wrong, utterly, atrociously and infamously wrong to send a detachment of troops, white or black, into Georgia or any other State, to burn and destroy towns and houses, plunder the inhabitants, and mark their track by general desolation, without any other reason than the mere desire of damaging the country claimed by the rebels.

We have yet had no official reports from Col. MONTGOMERY, and we do not credit the accounts of his doings that have been published by some journals. Col. MONTGOMERY has an excellent reputation, not only for skill and daring, but for humanity. He is probably the most accomplished guerrilla chief in the whole country, North or South. His exploits in the Kansas war were quite amazing; and he has delivered a lecture showing the modus operandi of those exploits, from which it appeared that they were based on rules subtler than those of science, though highly scientific; that bushwhacking or guerrillaism, is not, as is popularly supposed, merely the rush and gallop of a lot of bloodthirsty madmen, but is a style of warfare in which the finest genius can exercise itself in the most intricate military combinations. Beyond all this, he is a man deeply imbued with the spirit of justice and christianity, and on this ground we cannot credit the atrocities attributed to him. The journal which gives us the most terrific account of his alleged doings, in burning towns and pillaging populations, is the same one which lately shocked decency and disgraced our country by publishing an account of the burning of Jackson, Fla., by our troops, which subsequent events almost altogether disproved. But if these accounts be true, we do not hesitate to condemn them as infamous, and call upon the Government to put an immediate stop to them.

Our Iron-Clads.

In the accounts which we published yesterday of the iron-clad battle between the Monitor Weehawken and the rebel iron-clad Atlanta, we have the first true test of the wisdom of ERICSSON'S system of building vessels of war. When the Monitor fought the Merrimac in Hampton Roads, and permitted her to return to Norfolk without being either totally destroyed or captured, ERICSSON claimed that the full powers of his vessel had not been tested, because the guns which had been furnished him by the Navy Department were not so powerful as he had asked for, or as the vessel was capable of carrying. That original iron-clad battle, therefore, only proved the impregnability of the Monitor when opposed to the most powerful ordnance then afloat.

In building the new vessels, the Navy Department increased the size of the guns from eleven to fifteen inches calibre, carrying up the weight of the shot from one hundred and seventy to four hundred pounds. These enormous guns weigh twenty tons each, and it has been a matter of grave doubt with most of our naval officers whether a lighter gun, which could be fired more rapidly, would not have been more serviceable. Indeed, in the attacks upon Fort McAllister in the Ogeechee River, and upon Fort Sumter in Charleston harbor, it was a universal complaint against the Monitors that they could not keep up a sufficiently continuous fire, and that they must have either more guns or lighter ones which could be fired oftener.

ERICSSON'S reply to this has been, that he did not design the vessels to fight forts, but ships; and that his idea of a naval vessel which should insure victory against any other vessel whatsoever, was to have a gun of sufficient power to make a very large hole through the armature of the strongest iron-clad, placed on board a vessel which exposed to the enemy the least possible target, and this made so thick and strong that no ordnance could penetrate it. In such a vessel rapidity of fire was not essential against ships; but, until now, there has been no opportunity to prove the correctness of this theory; and the fact that seven of these vessels, supported by the Ironsides and the Keokuk, retired from before Sumter after one brief trial, certainly destroyed the charm which hung around these vessels in the public mind. The great fact that one of them had lain under the fire of a fort while she destroyed one of the enemy's vessels, three-quarters of a mile away, across the neck of land forming a bend in the river, without paying the slightest attention to the fort, as the Montauk did the Nashville, under the fire of Fort McAllister—passed by almost unheeded, although such a thing was never before known.

It would appear that the failure of the Monitors to take Charleston had materially lowered them in the estimation of the rebels, for we see in the accounts of the late battle, that the officers of the Atlanta were confident of their ability to capture both the Weehauken and the Nahant. Nor were the people of Savannah a whit behind them in this feeling, for we are told that two steamers, loaded with ladies and gentlemen, had come down the river as on an excursion, to see the discomfiture of the boasted Yankee Monitors, and to tow them up to Savannah as soon as they should surrender. How quickly was all this changed by a few heavy blows of that terrible four hundred pounder!

None of the famous old battles between wooden ships were ever half so quickly fought. The description of the battle itself, by Capt. RODGERS in his official report, is equally short. He says:

"At 5¼ o'clock, being distant from him about three hundred yards, we commenced firing. At 5¾ o'clock, the enemy hauled down his colors and hoisted the white flag, we having fired five shots."

This vessel was plated with five inches thickness of iron, placed at an angle of thirty degrees with the horizon. Yet Capt. RODGERS tells us that the first shot struck this side armor, and broke in the armor and the wood backing, strewing the deck with splinters, prostrating about forty men by the concussion, and wounding more by the broken pieces of armor and splinters. Yet this shot did not strike at right angles to the keel, but at an angle of fifty degrees with it. What resistance then could the four and a half inch vertical side-armor of England's boasted Warrior offer to such a shot striking it at right angles? It would certainly pass directly through both sides, and if fired at any of the many vital points contained within this flimsey armature, one shot would be entirely sufficient for placing her hors du combat.

It is the actual demonstration of this important fact which makes us feel grateful to Capt. RODGERS for the gallant service he has rendered the country in the spirited battle in Warsaw Sound.

We now know that we can defend our harbors against the most powerful iron-clad frigates which could by any possibility be brought against us by any European naval Power, in the event of a war with any of them; and with regard to the clumsy craft which the rebels are constantly blowing up or surrendering to anything which spiritedly attacks them, we have no longer a feeling of the slightest concern. The Atlanta was the staunchest one they had, with a good English hull, and faithful English steam machinery which would not blow up, and she lasted just fifteen minutes after the Monitor vessel opened on her.

We understand that the Government have built, or are building forty of these vessels. The assurance is as refreshing as a cool breeze on a warm day.

Missouri and Emancipation.

The politics of Missouri were never in a condition of more violent excitement than at the present time. The ordinary "high-pressure" action of everything personal, political and military, in that State, has just received a heavy fillip in the reassembling of the State Convention, charged now with the duty of relieving that Commonwealth from the curse of Slavery. We say duty, for the debate on the expediency and policy of Emancipation has long since closed, and all parties acknowledge that the hour of action has come. It is the duty of the Convention to carry out fairly and firmly the unmistakable will of the people, now fortunately in harmony with the decrees of Providence.

On the assembling of the Missouri Convention, the body was deluged with all sorts of plans of Emancipation, offered by individuals, each with the natural and usual vain desire of being the father of the Ordinance of Emancipation. These resolutions took the proper parliamentary course. A Committee was raised, composed of one from each district, to which all the resolutions were referred, with instructions to prepare an Ordinance of Emancipation. Two reports have come from the Committee, which, unluckily, could not agree on one plan. The majority report provides for the absolute Emancipation of all slaves in Missouri on the 4th of July, 1876, and that thenceforward Slavery, or involuntary servitude, except for the punishment of crime, shall not exist in Missouri. The minority report proposes that Slavery shall be abolished on the 1st of January, 1864, and that slaves and their issue shall be apprenticed to their former owners until the 4th of July, 1876.

The two propositions would seem, at first sight, to differ more in form than in fact. In either case, the services of the slaves are guaranteed to their present owners till the 4th of July, 1876—which day, in each plan, is to be the day of jubilee to the slaves of Missouri, the day of exodus from their "house of bondage." The minority report is, however, the more humane of the two, and the more thoughtful and statesmanlike, in this, that it provides for the proper education of the colored people during the interval of their thirteen years of apprenticeship; so that they may be prepared for their final condition of freedom.

It is difficult to reconcile any scheme of present or prospective Emancipation with genuine humanity, or with sound social or political economy, which fails to protect the slaves from the evils of their own weakness, ignorance and poverty, and society from the burdens which the sudden enfranchisement of such a class would impose. A well guarded apprentice system seems well calculated to break the shock of a radical change in the relationship of the white and black races, and we do not see why any humane emancipationist or wise citizen of Missouri should oppose it. The effect on the material prosperity of the State in the talismanic word, Freedom, if proclaimed on the first of January, 1864, would be of a thousand-fold more value in dollars and cents, in capital, emigration and enterprise, in liberal institutions and learning, than the earnings of a thousand times as many slaves as Missouri now has working out the painful demise of Slavery, and draining the last few drops in the cup of their humiliation, during the thirteen years of bondage still held before them. If the Convention, putting aside all thoughts of humanity and duty to the slave population in the impending social change, will reckon the pecuniary interests and political power of the State only, they will find that every interest impels to immediate Emancipation.

But the Convention cannot, in the face of civilized nations, venture on a work so high and holy as that of giving civil rights to a hundred thousand human beings that have been reared in profound ignorance, and are doomed to start their new life in abject poverty, without taking careful thought of their future. Liberty is not to be given to a slave as you would throw a bone to a dog—because you can make no further use of it, and because the dog can be kicked out to hunt his own corner to eat it. If Emancipation is a necessity in Missouri, upon which all parties are agreed, then humane Emancipation is a duty. And Emancipation, to be humane, must contemplate the ignorance of the slave, and try to educate him—and the helpless poverty of the slave, and make him as nearly provident and self-supporting as he is capable of becoming.

The cold, bare decree of Emancipation in 1876, as proposed by the majority report of the Committee, without one word of care for the slave before that date or after it, we protest against as cruel and unwise. Cruel in this, that it gives thirteen years in which masters, not touched with pity or compassion for their slaves, may work their way out of Missouri to slaveholding districts, if the war allows such to remain in the South, and thus escape the liberation that the Convention intends shall be the boon of every slave now in Missouri; and cruel in turning loose upon society every slave not removed from the State before 1876, without education, providence or property. And unwise in this, that it delays too long the dawn of Missouri's prosperity, if the unsatisfied longing of a large number of her people do not precipitate domestic conflicts, which, however weak and wicked on the revolutionary side, may inaugurate military necessities that will sweep away the safeguards of constitutions and civil government, and send Missouri quickly through a sea of fire to the haven that her present pilots might safely and peacefully conduct her to.

We present these considerations, in sympathy and with deep solicitude, to a great State, the pioneer in the work of self-regeneration from a system of Slavery that is scourging our Union, and whose example may lead to results as vast and priceless as its restoration.

NEW-JERSEY.—The proclamation of the Governor of New-Jersey in reference to the regiments lately sent from that State, is quite incomprehensible. It would seem to mean the withdrawal from Pennsylvania of the regiments of New Jersey militia just dispatched there. The militia troops raised are ordered to "return to their respective places of enrollment to be mustered out, and paid for the service they have performed," as the "necessity for their services no longer exists." The news this morning is that the rebel army is advancing upon the capital town of Pennsylvania, and no force is there sufficient to prevent it. What does Gov. PARKER mean?

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

OUTRAGES OF THE REBELS.

Capt. HALLECK MANN, of the Fourth New-York cavalry, in the Emery Hospital, positively asserts that his severe wound through the breast was inflicted after he was dismounted by a sabre blow in the face, and after he was on the ground. The proof is abundant that in the recent cavalry fights the rebels sabred and shot many of our men after they were captured. In no previous collision have they manifested such implacable hate.

Capt. HIRAM SMITH, Assistant Quartermaster United States Volunteers, was arraigned upon a charge of mutiny. The first specification reads thus:

That Capt. HIRAM SMITH, Assistant Quartermaster of Volunteers United States Army, did begin, excite, cause, and join in a mutiny, by employing some enlisted men of the First brigade, Pennsylvania Reserve corps, and other enlisted men of Volunteers, to raise a flagstaff, and did furnish a flag to be raised on the same, without the permission or knowledge of Col. WILLIAM SINCLAIR, of the Sixth regiment Pennsylvania Reserve corps, commanding the First brigade of said corps, and after the said Col. WILLIAM SINCLAIR had told him (the said Capt. HIRAM SMITH) that the aforesaid flag and flagstaff would not be raised. This at Fairfax Station, on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, Fairfax County, Va., on or about April 14, 1863.

Capt. SMITH was found not guilty, and was acquitted. This finding received the following indorsement:

In the case of Capt. HIRAM SMITH, Assistant Quartermaster of Volunteers, it is questionable whether the evidence fully acquits Capt. SMITH of all the serious charges preferred against him. A more immediate and unconditional obedience to orders is recommended to this officer in future. The proceedings are confirmed.

Capt. SMITH will resume his sword.

JOHN H. WARING, a citizen of Maryland, for harboring and protecting three persons employed in the rebel military service, has been sentenced to confinement in Fort Delaware during the rebellion.

INTERESTING FROM MEXICO.

The Escape of Ortega and Others Confirmed.

Gen. Garza Intrusted With the Defence of the Capital.

Removal of the French Headquarters from Puebla.

Large Forces Moving on the City of Mexico.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

HAVANA, Saturday, June 20, 1863.

The Spanish merchant steamer Mejico brought nothing later from Vera Cruz than had been already received by the English mail steamer. The only matter of interest which the newspapers contain is the confirmation of the escape of ORTEGA and other Generals from Orizaba, and also that up to the 25th ult. the City of Mexico had not been evacuated by JUAREZ' Government. General GARZA is intrusted with the defence of the Capital, but he only counted for that purpose on the remains of the forces that composed the army of the Centre.

Gen. MARQUEZ had moved on Mexico at the head of 7,000.

Gen. BAZAINE had also moved in the direction of the Capital at the head of 9,000 men.

Gens. ORTEGA, PRIETO, PIROBON, LLAVE and PATONI, who escaped from Orizaba arrived on the 29th of last month at Jalapa. They intended to leave immediately for the Capital.

At the last accounts from Vera Cruz it was known that the headquarters had been moved from that city, there only remaining as a garrison 4,000 men, of which 2,000 were French and 2,000 Mexicans.

The commercial houses in Vera Cruz had received instructions from their correspondents in Mexico to sends good in future by the direct road of Orizaba and not by Tuxpan as they had been doing.

The Eco del Comercio, of Vera Cruz, of the 2d inst., mentions the arrival at that city, on the 31st of May, of some of the Mexican inferior officers and 2,500 of the soldiers as prisoners, who would be employed on works of public utility. The same paper confirms the accounts of the surrender of Puebla.

It is not true, as reported by some correspondents in the French interest, that these latter found at Puebla munitions of war, or any military equipments in a good condition. On the contrary, there was an absolute want of provisions in the place, the muskets piled up in regular order were burned, and all the cannon used in the defence had been spiked.

The correspondent of the Diario de la Marina is of opinion that the greater part of ORTEGA's army could have escaped as Gen. NEGRETE succeeded in doing at the head of 500 or 600 men.

When Gen. FOREY said to the Generals, Colonels, &c., who surrendered prisoners, that he would leave them at liberty provided they would give their word of honor not to take up arms again during the campaign, they all in a breath gave cheers for the Republic, and broke out in offensive expressions against the French Emperor. The Commander-in-Chief of the French army then ordered them to be put in prison, and that they should be sent to France.

When the Generals arrived prisoners at Orizaba, the French officer who commanded the escort, says the Diario de la Marina, did not hesitate in granting them the range of the city as their prison, and that the more confidently because the Governor of the place, Señor PEON, who knew intimately Generals ORTEGA and LLAVE, guaranteed that they would not break their word, which they had given not to escape. In this manner, says the correspondent of the above named Havana newspaper, they availed themselves of the obscurity of the night and got away, two young ladies named ZAMORRA having apparently favored their escape. These young ladies were, accordingly, put in confinement, as well as the Governor of the city, and were to be tried. The other Generals, continues the same account, kept their plighted word, and protested against the conduct of their companions in misfortune, Generals MENDOZA, MORA and others.

It is not true, says the Diario de la Marina, as reported, that President JUAREZ and the rest of the Government had left Mexico. The same paper says that they have been well-informed that the reactionary Gen. MEJIA, at the head of about 8,000 men, was stationed on the road to Morelia and Guanajuato, to cut them off and make prisoners of them.

It appears, continues the same paper, that the capital had few defenders to oppose to the troops that were advancing against them. The Mexican General, MARQUEZ, had followed the high road to Mexico, with between seven and eight thousand men, but the Generals, BAZAINE and DOUAI, had taken another direction, expecting by this means to obtain more easily the same object.

The escort bringing several Generals prisoners, and all the officers of a high rank, was expected at Vera Cruz on the 7th. The same day as they arrived they were to be embarked on board of the French man-of-war Ceres, which would leave immediately for a French port. Only the subaltern officers were to be sent to Martinique.

Some of the Madrid papers are commenting upon what would be the course pursued by England and Spain in view of the direction taken by affairs in Mexico, but it is said that the Spanish Government is determined not to take any steps till the French army is in possession of the capital, or that a Government is established by which the demands of Spain can be attended to. It is likewise said, from the same source, that NAPOLEON has written to Gen. FOREY recommending him to treat the inhabitants of Puebla with great consideration. The French Government has sent a battery to Mexico, and is going to send three more, as well as 20,000 rounds of cartridges.

The Governor of the State of Yucatan had published a decree of President JUAREZ, creating a fund, of which no authority, either civil or military, could dispose, to be credited to the Government. This fund was to be formed by a tax on national tobacco and national cotton consumed in the capital of the republic, and ad valorem duties upon various other articles of so much per cent.

On the 2d inst., DON JOAQUIN GOMEZ, who had taken a very active active part in the revolutionary movement of Col. ACEREDO, was shot.

DEAFNESS
NOISES IN THE HEAD,
Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG.
Author of "Surgical and Practical Observations on the Diseases of the Ear, with his new Mode of Treatment."

NEW TESTIMONY.

"NEW-YORK, May 6.
I was entirely deaf in my left ear, accompanied by a discharge. I placed myself under Dr. VON EISENBERG'S care, who, by his great skill, restored me to perfect hearing, in the short space of a few minutes, without giving me the slightest pain, and the discharge has ceased entirely. The Eustachian Tube, which was obliterated, is quite open, and I feel that the air-passage performs its functions. I am amply satisfied, and recommend every one suffering from impaired hearing to place themselves under the treatment of this eminent and successful physician.
THOMAS GRANAN, No. 539 6th-av."

"NEW-YORK, May 7, 1863.
I have great pleasure to testify to the skill of Dr. VON EISENBERG. I went into his office almost completely deaf, and came out with my perfect hearing. It is nearly twelve months since, and the hearing is perfect. The operation, which lasted two or three minutes in each of my ears, gave me no pain whatsoever. I, with confidence, recommend all sufferers to place themselves under Dr. VON EISENBERG'S unsurpassing skill.
SAMUEL C. HUNT,
No. 6 Meserole-av., Greenpoint, L. I."

No. 136 MADISON-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.
I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.
I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.
JOHN TAYLOR,

NEW-YORK, July 19, 1862.
This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

No. 23 FORSYTH-ST., ROOM No. 40, NEW-YORK.
J. E. VON EISENBERG, M. D.—Dear Doctor: I have been afflicted with total deafness, and was induced to pay you a visit. No one can imagine my delight when, after one operation, my hearing was suddenly, and without pain, restored to me, for which I feel very grateful. After being totally deaf—almost shut out from the pleasure of using so necessary a sense—to have it returned, and to hear so distinctly, reflects great credit on you for the immense amount of skill you possess. I beg to thank you for what I can so truly appreciate. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ
NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.
"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the cells stealing over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

WHAT TO EAT, AND
HOW TO COOK IT.
Containing
Over One Thousand Receipts, Systematically and Practically Arranged, to Enable the Housekeeper to Prepare the Most Difficult or Simple Dishes in the Best Manner.
BY PIERRE BLOT,
Late editor of the Almanack Gastronomique, of Paris, and other Gastronomical Works. 1 vol. 12mo, cloth, $1.
"No matter how inexperienced some of our housekeeping readers may be, by carefully following our directions, they will be able to live as well and economically as possible, and also serve a dinner in as orderly a manner as any steward could do.
In our directions, gastronomy is blended with economy; and, although everything prepared according to these receipts will be in the highest and best style, it will still be cheaper than if prepared in the poorest way, as nothing will be wasted, and the best of everything used will be had.
This book will be proved to be simpler than many, if not all other Cook-Books. It contains more receipts, and is in accordance with the advancements of the present age.—Extract from Preface.

LAKE ERIE AND PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY.

FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND BONDS.

The Lake Erie and Pacific Railroad Company, in the State of Indiana, now offer for sale their entire issue of $890,000 First, and only, Mortgage Bonds, bearing seven per cent. interest, payable semi-annually in the City of New-York.

These bonds are secured by a DEED OF TRUST, constituting the FIRST and ONLY lien upon the entire Road, its franchises, appurtenances, rolling stock, &c.

Its route is along the White Water Valley, from Rushville to Union, a distance of about sixty miles, and passes through the richest, best cultivated and most densely populated portion of the State of Indiana.

The road is the CENTRAL SECTION of the otherwise completed TRUNK LINE, connecting the great Southwest at LOUISVILLE, Ky., on the Ohio River, and at an early day with TOLEDO and SANDUSKY, on Lake Erie.

The Company is wholly without debt (except its bonded debt) and being strong in its local traffic, and connecting with roads that must necessarily largely increase the volume of its revenues, the BOARD OF DIRECTORS, with great confidence, invite the attention of capitalists to these securities, believing that they offer an opportunity for a first-class railroad investment, than which, in their judgment, there is no better to be had.

The published exhibits of the Company, together with a map showing the locality and advantages of the Road, can be had from either of the Trustees of the Deed of Trust, in this City, named below, and from either of whom the bonds are only to be had.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it, and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 500 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

Firing is heard in the direction of Vicksburgh.

Naval.

THE NEW COMMANDER OF THE SOUTH ATLANTIC FLEET.

Admiral JOHN A. DAHLGREN, the successor of Admiral DU PONT, in command of the South Atlantic Fleet, has been for some time Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, and has been 37 years an officer in the navy. He entered the service on the first of February, 1826, in the regular manner, was classmate with Captains CRAVEN, TURNER, RADFORD, ROWAN, DRAYTON, and SANDS. On the Naval Register for 1863 he ranks fifteenth on the list of Captains, all the Rear Admirals, Admirals, all the Commodores, and fourteen Captains being above him. The sea service, to his credit, is less than that of any other officer in the navy, except three or four. Admiral DAHLGREN is a native and citizen of Pennsylvania, from which State he was appointed. The invention of the somewhat celebrated gun which bears his name, procured for him the distinguished position he has occupied in the Ordnance Department of the service for several years. He is very fond of gunnery, and has made many improvements in arming vessels-of-war.

THE BROOKLYN NAVY-YARD COMPLAINED OF.

The authorities of the Brooklyn Navy-yard are about to be censured by the Navy Department, in consequence of having detained the steam-gunboat Seminole for nearly a year, overhauling and repairing her, and then sending her off unseaworthy. She has put into Philadelphia for repairs, and will have to be coppered. She was reported in need of ninety days' work when the Brooklyn people commenced on her, yet they took nine months not to do it.

THE BOARD OF ENGINEERS.

The Board of Examiners of Naval Engineers, now in session at the Philadelphia Navy-yard, have recommended the following promotions: Second Assistant Engineer J. C. Hull, to be First Assistant Engineer; Third Assistant Engineers Frank H. Fletcher, Jas. Butterworth, Thos. W. Rae, Thos. Lynch and Harvey H. Burritt, to be Second Assistant Engineers. Also, the following for admission as Third Assistant Engineers: Frederick Schober, Pennsylvania; Jesse A. Diamond, Pennsylvania; Cates McArlister, Minnesota; Richard F. Edwards, Pennsylvania; Robert Crawford, Pennsylvania; Conrad J. Habighorst, Maryland; Jas. McGregor, New-York; Jacob M. Murrat, Pennsylvania; Benjamin R. Stephens, Pennsylvania; Thos. W. Fitch, New-York; W. Bond, Maryland.

ARRIVAL OF THE GUNBOAT MONTICELLO AT PHILADELPHIA.

The United States gunboat Monticello arrived at the Philadelphia Navy-yard on Tuesday afternoon, from Cape Fear River, via Hampton Roads. The Monticello was at that post about two years since, and in the intermediate time has been cruising among the different blockading squadrons. There were some ten or twelve United States vessels at Cape Fear River at the time of the departure of the Monticello, stationed at New-Inlet and Western Bar.

The vessels stationed at Cape Fear River were in expectation of the appearance of two rebel rams, known to be building at Wilmington, N. C., for some time past, and preparations were being made for their reception. The Monticello comes for repairs. Her boiler is very much out of order, and she requires overhauling in many other respects.

VESSELS OFFERED TO THE GOVERNMENT.

The following vessels have been offered to the Government:

MISCELLANEOUS.

Work at the Charlestown Navy-yard is very brisk. The iron-clad steamer Monadnock is ready and waiting for machinery, which is being made in Philadelphia. The side-wheel steamer Wyoming is ready to launch; but is also waiting for her machinery, which is completing in New-York. The defects in the screw bark Release are greater than at first supposed, and it will be three or four weeks before she will be ready.

The steamships Tuscarawda and Suwandee, which were sent in search of the privateer Tacony, arrived at Philadelphia on Tuesday. Neither of them had encountered the object of their search, nor obtained information as to her whereabouts.

Admiral FOOTE was no better last evening.

REBEL MOVEMENTS IN MARYLAND.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, June 24.

Later and reliable accounts from Frederick are that there no rebels near there, and that the force in the valley beyond South Mountain have made no movements in this direction. There are no regiments east of Boonsboro, which is four miles west of South Mountain.

Information at headquarters to-night goes to confirm the previous account of a very heavy rebel force being in the valley west of Boonsboro. They were moving northward, but it is not ascertained whether they were taking the Chambersburgh road or the road leading toward Gettysburgh. The artillery accompanying the body of rebels is said to number sixty-six pieces.

Some of the students of St. James College, near Hagerstown, arrived here this evening, who passed through the rebel lines yesterday. The accounts given by them agrees as to the force being large, and as to the number of cannon. One student estimated the column he saw at 8,000 strong.

REBEL MOVEMENTS IN PENNSYLVANIA.

HARRISBURGH, Midnight, Wednesday, June 24.

The rebels are within twenty-five miles of Harrisburgh. The enemy's column halted, about dusk, about eight miles the other side of Carlisle, and went into camp. The authorities are in telegraphic communication with Greyson's Station, two miles from the rebel pickets. Their line, to-night, is very strong.

The result of to-morrow is looked forward to with much anxiety. Gen. KNIPE may give the enemy battle at Carlisle, or can fall back to the Susquehannah. A battle will undoubtedly be fought or the place evacuated before to-morrow night.

Gen. COUCH has thrown a strong column in the neighborhood of Gettysburgh on the enemy's right flank. This, in connection with certain movements by the Army of the Potomac in their rear, will make it a dangerous experiment for them to attempt to hold the line of the Susquehannah.

Numerous arrests have been made to-day on the south side of the river of parties suspected of being rebel spies and guerrillas, but on the cases being investigated most of them proved refugees.

The clerks and other attachés of the State Capitol to-day organized themselves into a company for the defence of the city.

The works on the opposite side of the river have been completed, and guns are being mounted.

The Philadelphia Grey Reserves, 1,100 strong, are still here, but refused to be mustered in. Their conduct is severely commented on by the other troops.

Gen. ANDREW PORTER arrived here to-day, and tendered his services to the authorities.

Everything is quiet in the neighborhood of Gettysburgh and Hanover Junction. Great activity is being displayed in that quarter to prevent any demonstration on the line of the Northern Central Railroad.

A rebel operator at 10 o'clock to-night attached the wires at McConnellsburgh, and opened communication with Pittsburgh. He told a long story about JENKINS and what he intended doing. No reliance is placed in it.

It is reported here and believed that Gen. MILROY has been relieved of his command.

It is known here to a certainty that twenty regiments of rebel infantry passed through Chambersburgh to-day. They were moving in this direction, and are undoubtedly Gen. EWELL'S corps, (late Stone wall JACKSON'S.)

Important events are likely to transpire to-morrow.

OUR HARRISBURG CORRESPONDENCE.

The Advance of the Rebels to Chambersburgh—The Scotland Bridge—The Fright of the Pennsylvanians, &c.

HARRISBURGH, PENN., Wednesday, June 24, 1863.

The intelligence received here Monday night, that the rebels were advancing in strong force to Chambersburgh, proved to be incorrect at the time. Yesterday morning, however, at 11 o'clock, they entered and took possession of the town. Our troops—the Eighth and Seventy-first New-York—retired to Carlisle, but the next morning, upon learning that the enemy had not advanced, Gen. COUCH ordered the regiments to again proceed to Chambersburgh. The order was countermanded, on the reception of the news that the town was in the hands of the enemy. At 10 P. M., last night, Gov. CURTIN received a dispatch, stating that 1,600 cavalry had advanced to Scotland. Nothing was said about the railroad bridge, but it is very likely it was destroyed. Scotland is six miles this side of Chambersburgh, and is the furthest point east that the rebels have ventured to invade. The bridge was rebuilt last week, and Monday was the first day the cars passed over it since its completion. The train that came in from Chambersburgh, yesterday, was packed with citizens escaping from the rebels. Last evening, men, women and children, some on foot and others in vehicles, continued to flock into the city.

It is a curious fact to note that while the original inhabitants leave Harrisburgh through fright, their places are occupied by people coming from the districts above, and who consider themselves and property comparatively safe here. The traders in Harrisburgh are beginning to tremble, and if the enemy should take it into his head to send a few scouts to within twenty miles of the capital, doubtless we should witness a packing of goods and a removal of property that would outstrip any similar scene in New-York on a May-day.

One P. M.—Since penning the above four members of the Seventy-first have come in from Carlisse. They say that place will be held until the enemy advance in force, when the troops will fall back upon the fortications at Harrisburgh. Information was received at the Department one hour ago that the advancing rebel column numbers 30,000 men, including thirty pieces of artillery. Inasmuch as the report is confirmed from an official source the authorities are disposed to give it some credence. Telegraphic communication is still open to Shippensburgh, although the operator at that point states that the enemy is within one mile of him.

We have no means of defence beyond Harrisburgh, and if a fight should occur it will be on the opposite side of the Susquehanna. There we have fortifications that command the country for miles around, and if the guns are only properly managed the city will be saved from destruction.

Capt. BOYD, who has command of the rear guard, has not been heard from since last night, but it is presumed that he is gradually moving eastward.

Property Destroyed at Aquia Creek.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, June 24.

The Washington Star says:

We hear this afternoon, that on the night before last, a small band or party of rebels surreptitiously entered the Quartermaster's buildings and wharf at Aquia Creek, left standing by our troops, on the recent evacuation of that point.

The only work there said not to have been burned was a small portion of the wharf. The valuable wharf and the buildings at the point near by, known as Urba Switch, was not harmed by them, being probably too near our our gunboats.

The Union State Central Committee of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, June 24.

At a special meeting of the Union State Central Committee to-day, it was resolved that in the present emergency, while many of the delegates to the Union State Convention are engaged in the military service, and cannot be present at the meeting appointed to be held at Pittsburgh on the 17th of July, it is deemed expedient to postpone the Convention until the 5th of August.

THE REBEL PIRATES.

DEPREDATIONS OF THE TACONY.

The Schooner Marengo and Three Fishing Vessels Captured and Burned Off Chatham.

A Dozen Others Destroyed Behind Martha's Vineyard.

A United States Vessel-of-War in the Vicinity.

The Alabama and Virginia at Bahia on May 14.

BOSTON, Wednesday, June 24.

The schooner Lawrena arrived at Gloucester this morning and reports that on Monday afternoon, forty miles east-southeast from Chatham, saw the schooner Marengo on fire. Soon afterward saw a bark running for a fleet of thirty fishing vessels, and while we remained in sight three of the fishing vessels were set on fire.

SECOND DISPATCH.

BOSTON, Wednesday, June 24.

A large United States steamer is cruising off Chatham this morning.

The crew of a fishing smack burnt by the Tacony arrived at Wood's Hole to day.

They were put on board the South Shoal Lightship by the pirate.

NEW-BEDFORD, Wednesday, June 24.

On the 20th inst., at 4 P. M., the fishing-smack L. A. Macomber, of Noank, Conn., while at anchor, about 22 miles, E. S. E. from the South Shoal Light vessel, was boarded by the rebel privateer Tacony, and burned.

The crew of the Macomber were ordered on board of the Tacony, but on application were allowed to leave in their boats, and reached the South Shoal Light vessel in safety.

They were taken from the South Shoal Light vessel by the schooner Antietam, and were soon afterward transferred to the smack Eastern Star.

One of the crew, Mr. S. MORSE, arrived at Edgartown on the 23d instant.

The Tacony was painted black and had a yellow figure head, white carved work on the stern, single topsails, and one boat on the starboard quarter, one brass gun, a 24-pound rifle.

TWELVE MORE VESSELS BURNT.

NEWPORT, R. I., Wednesday, June 24.

Capt. E. SNOW, of the schooner Sarah E. Snow, of Truro, arrived here this afternoon. He reports spoke off Gay Head to-day, at 11 o'clock, schooner Western Light, Capt. GOODSPEED, who had a deck-load of men put on board by the pirate Alabama, (probably the Tacony.) He also reports four other vessels had preceded him to New-York, loaded with men from the destroyed fishermen. Capt. GOODSPEED says the pirate had destroyed upward of a dozen sail of vessels yesterday and this morning, all fishermen, which he fell in with back of Martha's Vineyard, taking everything of value from them and then setting them on fire.

At 8 o'clock this morning the pirate was still committing her depredations on the fishermen off No-Man's-Land.

THE ESCAPE OF THE EVENING STAR.

From the New-Haven Courier, June 24.

We alluded yesterday to the narrow escape from capture by pirates of the bark Evening Star, while on her passage from this port to ARROYO, P. R. We have since received the report of Capt. MANSFIELD, which is as follows:

May 29, lat. 25 04, lon. 65, more or less, saw a long, black hermaphrodite brig, steamboat bow and billet head; stood up under her lee and tacked ship, American colors flying at halfmast. Mistrusting that she was not what she appeared to be, hauled my vessel to the wind. The brig stood up under my lee until about abreast of the bark, and tacked ship, then being about one mile to leeward. After that, seeing I was gaining on the brig, concluded to keep on my course; and the brig began to fire round shot, firing in all six round shot and one shell, which came very near hitting us. She continued the chase six hours, but, finding that she was losing ground, concluded to give it up, and stood for another vessel.

THE ALABAMA AND VIRGINIA.

The pirates Alabama and Virginia were at Bahia May 14. The latter was brig-rigged, and without armament.

IMPORTANT FROM THE WEST INDIES.

Rumors About the Alabama—Reported Encounter with the Vanderbilt.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

HAVANA, Saturday, June 20, 1863.

The Spanish mail steamer España, from Cadiz, arrived here yesterday, and, in addition to news from Spain, brings the latest intelligence from the sister Spanish island of Porto Rico, where this line of steamers touch on their voyage out.

The Boletin of Porto Rico, of the 3d inst., under the title of "Rumors respecting the Alabama," publishes the following:

"By the English steamer which arrived at St. Thomas, we learn that the Alabama was at Santa Cruz. As soon as the news was spread at the above-named port, the Vanderbilt, which happened to be there, got steam up, and hurried off in pursuit of its enemy. As soon as it arrived there, a fight must have taken place, for a loud cannonading was heard in the direction of Santa Cruz. When this cleared, people were awaiting with anxiety the return of the Vanderbilt, to know the particulars of the fight, but when the steamer left she had not yet returned, on which account some persons concluded that she had been taken or sunk by her opponent, whilst others are of opinion that it is the Alabama which has been conquered. The truth of the matter will soon be known."

Messrs. H. A. COWPER, R. REVELT and E. BRAINARD WEBB, of London, have received permission from the Captain General of Porto Rico to make the surveys for a railroad from the Capital to Arecibo, beginning from outside the walls of the city. The project had given great satisfaction in all parts of the island.

On the 9th inst., a slight shock of earthquake was felt in the capital of the same island, but at Rio Pedras it was severe enough to frighten several families, who hurriedly left their homes for fear that they would tumble down.

The same paper—the Boletin, of Porto Rico—gives news from Santo Domingo up to the 30th ult., when there prevailed complete tranquillity on that island, and there was no fear that it would be disturbed again. This was proved by two proclamations of the Government—one abolishing the martial law, and another dissolving the military Executive Commission of Santiago de los Caballeros. The Captain-General of Santo Domingo had addressed a sensible and memorable proclamation to the Dominicans with respect to the late events.

The Spanish mail steamer has brought permission from the Government at Madrid to level the walls of Havana, an improvement that was long desired, for the salubrity as well as convenience of the city. For the present, and until the complicated questions that must result as to the turning to profitable account the vacant lands, are settled, the Corporation are permitted to pull down all those parts of the walls which obstruct the public thoroughfare.

The Captain-General has also been authorized to acquire the necessary lands for founding a special school of agriculture, and a Committee has been appointed by him to examine certain lands and make a report thereon. LARA.

Attempt to Arrest Two Deserters—They Kill Two Officers and then Shoot Themselves.

BANGOR, Me., Wednesday, June 23.

Yesterday, Officer MCKINNEY, of Belfast, was shot by two deserters, named GRANT and KNOWLES, whom he was endeavoring to arrest in Troy for horse-stealing. The citizens then turned out to arrest the desperadoes, and while attempting to secure them, they fired on another officer and killed him. Finding that escape was impossible, and determined not to be taken alive, the two deserters then deliberately shot and killed themselves.

The Reported Capture of the Gunboat Essex.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, June 24.

The rebel report of the capture of the gunboat Essex, probably had its origin in the capture of an officer of a naval battery connected with the Essex. The Essex was safe and in good condition up to the 13th inst.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, June 24.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE FOURTH WARD HOMICIDE.

Testimony upon the Inquest—The Prisoner Committed to the Tombs.

Coroner COLLIN yesterday held an inquest at the Fourth Precinct station-house on the body of JOSEPH NIXON, who at a late hour on Tuesday night, was shot in Cherry-street, near Oliver, with a pistol in the hands of WALTER D. BELL.

Frances Davis was the first witness examined. She testified that she resided at No. 89 Cherry-street; that soon after 10 o'clock on Tuesday night she was standing on the corner of Oliver and Cherry streets, when the deceased passed by her; when he was a short distance past her, she heard deceased say, "fire, you bugger!" witness immediately heard three shots, as she judged from a pistol, all in quick succession; the shots were fired from a man in the street; deceased immediately exclaimed, "Oh God, I'm killed!" the deceased fell immediately; the smoke of the pistol passed over witness' head; deceased was about seven feet from the man who shot him; witness did not know either of the parties.

Richard Allen testified that from 7 to 10 o'clock, on Tuesday night, he was in company with the prisoner; that at the house last named he was with the prisoner and one GAGUIN, on the corner of Oliver and Cherry streets; about this time the deceased came along, and sung out to prisoner in such a manner as to indicate to witness that deceased had some designs on the prisoner; witness knew that they had had a quarrel in New-Orleans some time ago, and he therefore tried to get prisoner to go away; immediately after, deceased rushed toward the prisoner, with a pistol in his hand, and at once tried to fire it at prisoner. Witness was in a store taking a drink when the shots were fired at deceased; when he came out of the store he found deceased lying on his face by an apple stand, on the sidewalk; witness helped to take deceased to the Station-house, where he died about the time he was being taken into the room. He breathed for about ten minutes after he was shot; witness had often heard the deceased say that he would kill the prisoner the first opportunity.

David Kenny, testified that he resides at No. 26 Monroe-street, and was acquainted with both parties; witness knew that about three years ago they had a quarrel in a bar-room in New-Orleans; the deceased at that time drew a knife on the prisoner, and the latter threw a tumbler at him, striking him on his eye. From the effect of this blow he lost his eye, and he had a glass-eye put in. Witness had several times heard the deceased say that he would take the prisoner's life.

James Gaynor, patrolman of the Fourth Precinct, testified that about half past ten o'clock on Tuesday night, he was standing at the corner of James and Cherry streets, when he heard three pistol shots fired in quick succession; witness at once went to the spot, where he saw a man step back into the street, whom he supposed to be the man who fired the shots, at the same time he saw the deceased fall to the sidewalk; as soon as witness reached the spot the prisoner said, "Officer, take my revolver. I'm the man who shot him;" witness then took him to the Station-house.

Dr. Thomas Robinson, who made the post-mortem examination of the body, testified that he found three pistol shot wounds on the body of deceased in the following situations: One wound was in the umbilical region about one inch above and one-half inch to the left of the umbilicus; the second wound was in the right inguinal region, about one and a half inches below Poupert's ligament, and midway between the anterior and superior spinous process of the illium, and the symphysis pubis: this wound passed through the thigh anterior to the femur, and lacerated some of the branches of the femoral artery; the third wound was through the left thigh, about one inch from, anterior to, and on a line with the greater trochanter.

At the conclusion of the testimony the jury rendered the following verdict: "That the deceased, Joseph Nixon, came to his death by pistol-shot wounds at the hands of Walter D. Bell."

Upon the rendition of the verdict, Coroner COLLIN made the usual examination of the prisoner, and in answer to the questions put to him, he stated that his name is WALTER D. BELL, 26 years of age, born in Scotland, and that he was attached to the naval service. To Mr. DE VOE, Master's Mate. In answer to the question as to what he had to say relative to the charge preferred against him, the accused said, "I had a difficulty with deceased in a bar-room in New-Orleans some time ago. I wrote to some men to compromise it with him, and they told me that he would not compromise with me, and that he would kill me on sight. About seven weeks ago I arrived here, and my brother told me that he (deceased) would shoot me the first chance he got. I stopped about the vessel two weeks, to keep out of his way. I always avoided his neighborhood; I purchased the pistol for safe protection. I have met him several times, and I always got out of his way. Last night I was coming down from the corner of James and Oliver streets; I was with LARKIN, going toward KANE'S corner, for the purpose of taking a drink, when I saw three men coming down Oliver-street. When they came up, I did not at first recognize the deceased, who was one of the party. About this time one of my party winked and motioned me to go away. The deceased then turned his head toward me, and I then stepped back; whereupon he pulled out his pistol, cocked it, and pointed it at me. I then pulled out my revolver and aimed at his thigh, and reluctated. He kept cocking his pistol and snapping it at me; I then fired two shots rapidly at him; I was too close to him to run, and too far away to grasp his revolver. I then went to give myself up, but was advised to wait. I then gave myself up to an officer."

Coroner COLLIN then committed the prisoner to the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Mission of the "George Griswold" to England—Present State of English Public Opinion.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

As many inquires are made of me respecting the expedition of the American relief-ship George Griswold with her cargo of 15,000 barrels of flour and food for the suffering operatives of Great Britain, permit me in a few words to state the facts:

The ship was received in Liverpool with many demonstrations of national respect. The civil, military and naval authorities united to bid her welcome. Her cargo was speedily distributed among those in need, by the hands of responsible parties. Large public meetings followed this distribution, in various parts of the distressed districts, at which the people received me as an American clergyman, with much good feeling and enthusiasm. Resolutions were passed, at the close of these popular demonstrations, warmly pledging the sympathy of the laboring masses of Great Britain with the struggle of the United States to maintain their Union and Constitution, as the strong hope of European liberty.

The report that the bread has been wasted by the recipients is entirely erroneous. On one occasion in Manchester—the anniversary of the marriage of the Prince of Wales—there were distributed among the crowd 15,000 penny loaves. There was some rush for them among the people, but not a loaf was wasted. When the character of the gift was explained to them the recipients were grateful, and carried the welcome American bread home to their families.

The facts warrant me in saying that a very large majority of the people of the British empire are strong for the union and freedom of America.

I shall be obliged to the editors of our country if they will copy this brief note.

FROM VICKSBURGH.—It is feared that PEMBERTON will demand the surrender of the artillerist who shot off his KNOX in the late battle. KNOX, the hatter, of No. 212 Broadway, has petitioned the President to refuse the demand. PEMBERTON is disheartened. The city must fall. The KNOX was a great favorite throughout the whole rebel army. The fatal shell blew it to atoms.

IMPORTANT FROM VICKSBURGH.

Dispatches from Gen. Grant to the 18th

EVERYTHING PROGRESSING WELL.

Joe Johnston at Yazoo City, Brownsville and Clinton.

Hot Shot to be Thrown Into the City.

Rebel Reports of a Battle at Big Black Bridge.

Our Cavalry at Work on Johnston's Communications.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, June 24.

Gen. GRANT has telegraphed to Headquarters as follows:

NEAR VICKSBURGH, Thursday, June 18. } VIA CAIRO, Tuesday, June 23. }

Everything is progressing well here.

JOHNSTON'S forces are at Yazoo City, Brownsville, and Clifton.

Deserters come out daily. They all report rations short.

We scarcely ever lose a man now.

The health and condition of the troops are most excellent.

CINCINNATI, Wednesday, June 24.

The Gazette's correspondent, writing from near Vicksburgh, 18th, says it was "intended to open with hot shot upon the city on the 20th."

HOW THE SIEGE IS CONDUCTED.

A correspondent at Vicksburgh, writing of the siege, describes the following novel way of conducting it:

"We were approaching the fort by way of the road running along the ridge, and the fort, being built right across the road, commands the position so perfectly that it was impossible to dig the ditch that is to lead us to the base of their works without some protection. A ditch six feet wide and six feet deep was completed to within two hundred feet of the fort, when it was necessary to turn it in a direction to the left across the road. From this point it was to be turned at right angles nearly, and one hundred feet would bring us to the base.

To dig the ditch across the road was the main difficulty. To accomplish this a car was constructed, 30 by 10 feet, and put upon small wheels. A row of cotton bales standing on end were put in front and on each side. After it was ready the men run it out from behind our earthworks into the road in front of the fort. It was hardly out before a rebel popped up his head, and exclaimed with an oath, 'Here comes the Lincoln wagon.' Their curiosity was excited, and it was very evident that with them it was a mixed question whether it was a simple car-load of cotton, or some infernal machine of Yankee invention. Heads would appear above the parapet for an instant to get a look just long enough to hear the crack of some sharpshooter's rifle, that fractures the cranial box of some inquiring mind.

Yesterday the car was run out, and during the day the ditch across the road was completed. It was no longer necessary to us, yet the rebels did not know this. It was expected that they would make an attempt to burn it last night, and perhaps a successful one. About midnight, as I was watching the movements of things along the line, I saw at the distance of two miles fire-balls thrown from the fort toward the 'wagon,' and soon it was in flames. The flash of musketry from our ditches was very rapid, and the enemy suffered so severely by it, that in retaliation they returned the fire as well as they could. For the first time since the siege begun, musketry firing was kept up all night.

This morning our men are at work again behind a large round bale of cotton, made expressly for the occasion. As they advance they roll it before them. Gen. PRICE inaugurated this species of strategy at Lexington. Before this reaches you we hope the object of this work may be attained, and it does no harm to say that it is for the purpose of blowing up the main fort or 'key to Vicksburgh.' A few days more will complete the work, unless some unforeseen obstacles are thrown in the way. When we once obtain possession of these works and the ridge running into town, the fate of Vicksburgh is decided."

REBEL TELEGRAMS FROM JACKSON.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, June 24.

The Richmond Dispatch of yesterday contains the following:

JACKSON, Miss., Thursday, June 18.

The enemy's cavalry made a dash on our outposts near Edwards' Depot yesterday, but found them too strong, and retreated across the Big Black again.

Scarcely a day passes without an accident on the Meridan Railroad, which, being the principal means of transportation of supplies, has retarded Gen. JOHNSTON's movements.

Firing continues at Vicksburgh.

SECOND DISPATCH.

JACKSON, Friday, June 1.

A special dispatch to the Mississippian, dated Panola, 18th, says that a heavy force of Yankee cavalry is marching on Zeackona, between that point and Grenada. HATCH's and WALLACE's Yankee cavalry are rigging rafts to cross the Tallahatchie, with the intention of destroying the road below Panola, and cutting off JOHNSTON's supplies. Another force is crossing the Coldwater, near Senatobia. They came from Memphis. Gen. JOHNSTON has issued orders granting a full pardon to all deserters in his Department who will rejoin their commands immediately.

Nothing from Vicksburgh or Port Hudson. No firing heard there this morning.

THIRD DISPATCH.

JACKSON, Saturday, June 20, VIA MOBILE, 21st.

A soldier who escaped from Louisville, Ky., on the 5th, reports that Majs. T. P. THOMPSON and F. M. COWAN were taken to jail in that place, and hung, under Gen. BURNSIDE's order, forbidding recruiting in that State.

Citizens just in report a heavy engagement between JACKSON's cavalry and the enemy at Big Black Bridge. At the time they left the musketry and cannonading were awful and terrific.

Firing is heard in the direction of Vicksburgh.

Naval.

THE NEW COMMANDER OF THE SOUTH ATLANTIC FLEET.

Admiral JOHN A. DAHLGREN, the successor of Admiral DU PONT, in command of the South Atlantic Fleet, has been for some time Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, and has been 37 years an officer in the navy. He entered the service on the first of February, 1826, in the regular manner; was classmate with Captains CRAVEN, TURNER, RAFFORD, ROWAN, DRAYTON, and SANDS. On the Naval Register for 1863 he ranks fifteenth on the list of Captains, all the Rear Admirals, Admirals, all the Commodores, and fourteen Captains being above him. The sea service, to his credit, is less than that of any other officer in the navy, except three or four. Admiral DAHLGREN is a native and citizen of Pennsylvania, from which State he was appointed. The invention of the somewhat celebrated gun which bears his name, procured for him the distinguished position he has occupied in the Ordnance Department of the service for several years. He is very fond of gunnery, and has made many improvements in arming vessels-of-war.

THE BROOKLYN NAVY-YARD COMPLAINED OF.

The authorities of the Brooklyn Navy-yard are about to be censured by the Navy Department, in consequence of having detained the steam-gunboat Seminole for nearly a year, overhauling and repairing her, and then sending her off unseaworthy. She has put into Philadelphia for repairs, and will have to be coppered. She was reported in need of ninety days' work when the Brooklyn people commenced on her, yet they took nine months not to do it.

THE BOARD OF ENGINEERS.

The Board of Examiners of Naval Engineers, now in session at the Philadelphia Navy-yard, have recommended the following promotions: Second Assistant Engineer J. C. Hull, to be First Assistant Engineer; Third Assistant Engineers Frank H. Fletcher, Jas. Butterworth, Thos. W. Rae, Thos. Lynch and Harvey H. Burritt, to be Second Assistant Engineers. Also, the following for admission as Third Assistant Engineers: Frederick Schober, Pennsylvania; Jesper A. Diamond, Pennsylvania; Gates McArlister, Minnesota; Richard F. Edwards, Pennsylvania; Robert Crawford, Pennsylvania; Conrad J. Habighorst, Maryland; Jas. McGregor, New-York; Jacob M. Murray, Pennsylvania; Benjamin R. Stephens, Pennsylvania, Thos. W. Fitch, New-York; W. Bond, Maryland.

ARRIVAL OF THE GUNBOAT MONTICELLO AT PHILADELPHIA.

The United States gunboat Monticello arrived at the Philadelphia Navy-yard on Tuesday afternoon, from Cape Fear River, via Hampton Roads. The Monticello was at that port about two years since, and in the intermediate time has been cruising among the different blockading squadrons. There were some ten or twelve United States vessels at Cape Fear River at the time of the departure of the Monticello, stationed at New-Inlet and Western Bar.

The vessels stationed at Cape Fear River were in expectation of the appearance of two rebel rams, known to be building at Wilmington, N. C., for some time past, and preparations were being made for their reception. The Monticello comes for repairs. Her boiler is very much out of order, and she requires overhauling in many other respects.

VESSELS OFFERED TO THE GOVERNMENT.

The following vessels have been offered to the Government;

Name.	Price.	Party.
Sentinel	$25,000	E. F. Wilson, New York
Signal	26,000	E. F. Wilson, New York
J. W. Harcourt	15,000	E. F. Wilson, agent, N.Y

Charters.—Creole, $100 per day, for six months, Ludlam & Co., New-York; two steamers, $1,000 each per day, J. H. Foster & Co., Massachusetts.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Work at the Charlestown Navy-yard is very brisk. The iron-clad steamer Monadnock is ready and waiting for machinery, which is being made in Philadelphia. The side-wheel steamer Winooska is ready to launch; but is also waiting for her machinery, which is completing in New-York. The defects in the store bark Release are greater than at first supposed, and it will be three or four weeks before she will be ready.

The steamships Tonawanda and Suwandee, which were sent in search of the privateer Tacony, arrived at Philadelphia on Tuesday. Neither of them had encountered the object of their search, nor obtained information as to her whereabouts.

Admiral FOOTE was no better last evening.

OUR HARRISBURG CORRESPONDENCE.

The Retrograde Movement from Chambersburgh—A Canard—Gen. Franklin—Superintendent of Telegraphs and Railroads.

HARRISBURGH, Penn., Tuesday, June 23, 1863.

At 11 o'clock last night dispatches were received by Gen. COUCH, informing him that rebel scouts had reëntered Greencastle, and that a considerable force were preparing to march into Chambersburgh. Our troops at the latter point were immediately ordered to fall back to Carlisle. This morning, however, it appears that the rebels were not at Greencastle last night, and that the report of their advancing eastward had no foundation in fact. The whole affair was evidently got up by some Copperhead to frighten the people and soldiers, and the party is doubtless congratulating himself, this morning, upon the success of his operation. Before daylight our troops were returning to Chambersburgh, and at this time occupy the same position that they did before the stampede.

The force at Chambersburgh is commanded by Brig.-Gen. KNIPE. As yet it is not very heavy, and will not be so until the base of operations is thoroughly established at Harrisburgh. Then a mass will be thrown forward, sufficiently strong to hold Chambersburgh in case the rebels make a demonstration on that place. We have already assembled here twelve New-York regiments, besides regiments from New-Jersey, and enrolled and volunteer militiamen from portions of this State. The camping-ground across the Susquehanna reminds me of the Peninsula and other campaigns, so much does it resemble the scenes of an active army. The men are regularly drilled, and military discipline is strictly regarded. Trains of supply wagons move over the bridge the same as they did over Long Bridge at Washington, when the army was on the opposite side.

Gen. FRANKLIN was in the city yesterday, and had an extended interview with Gov. CURTIN. The probable intentions of the enemy with reference to Pennsylvania, and the proper defensive course to be adopted, were freely discussed.

Capt. JAS. S. BRISBIN, U. S. A., has been appointed Chief of cavalry in this Department. His headquarters are at Camp Curtin. The City Troop, a Philadelphia cavalry company, proceeded to Gettysburgh yesterday. It is reported they encountered the enemy in that vicinity, and after a brief skirmish drove him from the field, having first taken five prisoners. The City Troop are a fine body of men who have a full share of dash, and look as if they would act their part nobly in event of an action. They bore their own expenses from Philadelphia, and will remain in the field until their services are no longer required to defend the State. A large number of horses arrive here daily, but as the supply is not sufficient to meet the demand, Gov. CURTIN will issue an order soon to seize horses in certain localities.

The transportation of troops to this and other places is a work of no light importance, and requires the attention of a capable and intelligent officer. The State has happily found the man for the place in the person of Major O. W. LEES, who not only looks after that branch of duties, but also superintends the telegraphic department. The bridge at Scotland has been rebuilt, and trains are now running regularly to Chambersburgh.

In consequence of the complexion of affairs last night, several citizens made arrangements to leave town. This morning a half dozen wagon loads of furniture were taken away. The owners will probably return in due time and accept of the privilege of fleeing again whenever the rebels are reported to be contemplating a movement eastward. WHIT.

The Advance of the Rebels to Chambersburgh—The Scotland Bridge—The Fright of the Pennsylvanians, &c.

HARRISBURGH, Penn., Wednesday, June 24, 1863.

The intelligence received here Monday night, that the rebels were advancing in strong force to Chambersburgh, proved to be incorrect at the time. Yesterday morning, however, at 11 o'clock, they entered and took possession of the town. Our troops—the Eighth and Seventy-first New-York—retired to Carlisle; but the next morning, upon learning that the enemy had not advanced, Gen. COUCH ordered the regiments to again proceed to Chambersburgh. The order was countermanded, on the reception of the news that the town was in the hands of the enemy. At 10 P. M., last night, Gov. CURTIN received a dispatch, stating that 1,000 cavalry had advanced to Scotland. Nothing was said about the railroad bridge, but it is very likely it was destroyed. Scotland is six miles this side of Chambersburgh, and is the furthest point east that the rebels have ventured to invade. The bridge was rebuilt last week, and Monday was the first day the cars passed over it since its completion. The train that came in from Chambersburgh, yesterday, was packed with citizens escaping from the rebels. Last evening, men, women and children, some on foot and others in vehicles, continued to flock into the city.

It is a curious fact to note that while the original inhabitants leave Harrisburgh through fright, their places are occupied by people coming from the districts above, and who consider themselves and property comparatively safe here. The traders in Harrisburgh are beginning to tremble, and if the enemy should take it into his head to send a few scouts to within twenty miles of the capital, doubtless we should witness a packing of goods and a removal of property that would outstrip any similar scene in New-York on a May-day.

One P. M.—Since penning the above four members of the Seventy-first have come in from Carlisse. They say that place will be held until the enemy advance in force, when the troops will fall back upon the fortications at Harrisburgh. Information was received at the Department one hour ago that the advancing rebel column numbers 30,000 men, including thirty pieces of artillery. Inasmuch as the report is confirmed from an official source the authorities are disposed to give it some credence. Telegraphic communication is still open to Shippensburgh, although the operator at that point states that the enemy is within one mile of him.

We have no means of defence beyond Harrisburgh, and if a fight should occur it will be on the opposite side of the Susquehanna. There we have fortifications that command the country for miles around, and if the guns are only properly managed the city will be saved from destruction.

Capt. BOYD, who has command of the rear guard, has not been heard from since last night, but it is presumed that he is gradually moving eastward.

THE REBEL PIRATES.

DEPREDATIONS OF THE TACONY.

The Schooner Marengo and Three Fishing Vessels Captured and Burned Off Chatham.

A Dozen Others Destroyed Behind Martha's Vineyard.

A United States Vessel-of-War in the Vicinity.

The Alabama and Virginia at Bahia on May 14.

BOSTON, Wednesday, June 24.

The schooner Lawrena arrived at Gloucester this morning and reports that on Monday afternoon, forty miles east-southeast from Chatham, saw the schooner Marengo on fire. Soon afterward saw a bark running for a fleet of thirty fishing vessels, and while we remained in sight three of the fishing vessels were set on fire.

SECOND DISPATCH.

BOSTON, Wednesday, June 24.

A large United States steamer is cruising off Chatham this morning.

The crew of a fishing smack burnt by the Tacony arrived at Wood's Hole to day.

They were put on board the South Shoal Lightship by the pirate.

NEW-BEDFORD, Wednesday, June 24.

On the 20th inst., at 4 P. M., the fishing-smack L. A. Macomber, of Noank, Conn., while at anchor, about 22 miles, E. S. E. from the South Shoal Light vessel, was boarded by the rebel privateer Tacony, and burned.

The crew of the Macomber were ordered on board of the Tacony, but on application were allowed to leave in their boats, and reached the South Shoal Light vessel in safety.

They were taken from the South Shoal Light vessel by the schooner Antietam, and were soon afterward transferred to the smack Eastern Star.

One of the crew, Mr. S. MORSE, arrived at Edgartown on the 23d instant.

The Tacony was painted black and had a yellow figure head, white carved work on the stern, single topsails, and one boat on the starboard quarter, one brass gun, a 24-pound rifle.

TWELVE MORE VESSELS BURNT.

NEWPORT, R. I., Wednesday, June 24.

Capt. E. SNOW, of the schooner Sarah E. Snow, of Truro, arrived here this afternoon. He reports spoke off Gay Head to-day, at 11 o'clock, schooner Western Light, Capt. GOODSPEED, who had a deck-load of men put on board by the pirate Alabama, (probably the Tacony.) He also reports four other vessels had preceded him to New-York, loaded with men from the destroyed fishermen. Capt. GOODSPEED says the pirate had destroyed upward of a dozen sail of vessels yesterday and this morning, all fishermen, which he fell in with back of Martha's Vineyard, taking everything of value from them and then setting them on fire.

At 8 o'clock this morning the pirate was still committing her depredations on the fishermen off No-Man's-Land.

THE ESCAPE OF THE EVENING STAR

From the New-Haven Courier, June 24.

We alluded yesterday to the narrow escape from capture by pirates of the bark Evening Star, while on her passage from this port to ARROYO, P. R. We have since received the report of Capt. MANSFIELD, which is as follows:

May 29, lat. 25 64, lon. 65, more or less, saw a long, black hermaphrodite brig, steamboat bow and billet head; stood up under her lee and tacked ship, American colors flying at halfmast. Mistrusting that she was not what she appeared to be, hauled my vessel to the wind. The brig stood up under my lee until about abreast of the bark, and tacked ship, then being about one mile to leeward. After that, seeing I was gaining on the brig, concluded to keep on my course; and the brig began to fire round shot, firing in all six round shot and one shell, which came very near hitting us. She continued the chase six hours, but, finding that she was losing ground, concluded to give it up, and stood for another vessel.

THE ALABAMA AND VIRGINIA.

The pirates Alabama and Virginia were at Bahia May 14. The latter was brig-rigged, and without armament.

IMPORTANT FROM THE WEST INDIES.

Rumors About the Alabama—Reported Encounter with the Vanderbilt.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

HAVANA, Saturday, June 20, 1863.

The Spanish mail steamer España, from Cadiz, arrived here yesterday, and, in addition to news from Spain, brings the latest intelligence from the sister Spanish island of Porto Rico, where this line of steamers touch on their voyage out.

The Boletin of Porto Rico, of the 3d inst., under the title of "Rumors respecting the Alabama," publishes the following:

"By the English steamer which arrived at St. Thomas, we learn that the Alabama was at Santa Cruz. As soon as the news was spread at the above-named port, the Vanderbilt, which happened to be there, got steam up, and hurried off in pursuit of its enemy. As soon as it arrived there, a fight must have taken place, for a loud cannonading was heard in the direction of Santa Cruz. When this cleared, people were awaiting with anxiety the return of the Vanderbilt, to know the particulars of the fight, but when the steamer left she had not yet returned, on which account some persons concluded that she had been taken or sunk by her opponent, whilst others are of opinion that it is the Alabama which has been conquered. The truth of the matter will soon be known."

Messrs. H. A. COWPER, R. REVELT and E. BRAINARD WEBB, of London, have received permission from the Captain General of Porto Rico to make the surveys for a railroad from the Capital to Arecibo, beginning from outside the walls of the city. The project had given great satisfaction in all parts of the island.

On the 9th inst., a slight shock of earthquake was felt in the capital of the same island, but at Rio Pedras it was severe enough to frighten several families, who hurriedly left their homes for fear that they would tumble down.

The same paper—the Boletin, of Porto Rico—gives news from Santo Domingo up to the 30th ult., when there prevailed complete tranquillity on that island, and there was no fear that it would be disturbed again. This was proved by two proclamations of the Government—one abolishing the martial law, and another dissolving the military Executive Commission of Santiago de los Caballeros. The Captain-General of Santo Domingo had addressed a sensible and memorable proclamation to the Dominicans with respect to the late events.

The Spanish mail steamer has brought permission from the Government at Madrid to level the walls of Havana, an improvement that was long desired, for the salubrity as well as convenience of the city. For the present, and until the complicated questions that must result as to the turning to profitable account the vacant lands, are settled, the Corporation are permitted to pull down all those parts of the walls which obstruct the public thoroughfare.

The Captain-General has also been authorized to acquire the necessary lands for founding a special school of agriculture, and a Committee has been appointed by him to examine certain lands and make a report thereon.

Attempt to Arrest Two Deserters—They Kill Two Officers and then Shoot Themselves.

BANGOR, Me., Wednesday, June 23.

Yesterday, Officer MCKINNEY, of Belfast, was shot by two deserters, named GRANT and KNOWLES, whom he was endeavoring to arrest in Troy for horse-stealing. The citizens then turned out to arrest the desperadoes, and while attempting to secure them, they fired on another officer and killed him. Finding that escape was impossible, and determined not to be taken alive, the two deserters then deliberately shot and killed themselves.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE FOURTH WARD HOMICIDE.

Testimony upon the Inquest—The Prisoner Committed to the Tombs.

Coroner COLLIN yesterday held an inquest at the Fourth Precinct station-house on the body of JOSEPH NIXON, who at a late hour on Tuesday night, was shot in Cherry-street, near Oliver, with a pistol in the hands of WALTER D. BELL.

Frances Davis was the first witness examined. She testified that she resided at No. 89 Cherry-street; that soon after 10 o'clock on Tuesday night she was standing on the corner of Oliver and Cherry streets, when the deceased passed by her; when he was a short distance past her, she heard deceased say, "fire, you bugger!" witness immediately heard three shots, as she judged from a pistol, all in quick succession; the shots were fired from a man in the street; deceased immediately exclaimed, "Oh God, I'm killed!" the deceased fell immediately; the smoke of the pistol passed over witness' head; deceased was about seven feet from the man who shot him; witness did not know either of the parties.

Richard Allen testified that from 7 to 10 o'clock, on Tuesday night, he was in company with the prisoner; that at the house last named he was with the prisoner and one Gaguin, on the corner of Oliver and Cherry streets; about this time the deceased came along, and sung out to prisoner in such a manner as to indicate to witness that deceased had some designs on the prisoner; witness knew that they had had a quarrel in New-Orleans some time ago, and he therefore tried to get prisoner to go away; immediately after, deceased rushed toward the prisoner, with a pistol in his hand, and at once tried to fire it at prisoner. Witness was in a store taking a drink when the shots were fired at deceased; when he came out of the store he found deceased lying on his face by an apple stand, on the sidewalk; witness helped to take deceased to the Station-house, where he died about the time he was being taken into the room. He breathed for about ten minutes after he was shot; witness had often heard the deceased say that he would kill the prisoner the first opportunity.

David Kenny, testified that he resides at No. 26 Monroe-street, and was acquainted with both parties; witness knew that about three years ago they had a quarrel in a bar-room in New-Orleans; the deceased at that time drew a knife on the prisoner, and the latter threw a tumbler at him, striking him on his eye. From the effect of this blow he lost his eye, and he had a glass-eye put in. Witness had several times heard the deceased say that he would take the prisoner's life.

James Gaynor, patrolman of the Fourth Precinct, testified that about half past ten o'clock on Tuesday night, he was standing at the corner of James and Cherry streets, when he heard three pistol shots fired in quick succession; witness at once went to the spot, where he saw a man step back into the street, whom he supposed to be the man who fired the shots, at the same time he saw the deceased fall to the sidewalk; as soon as witness reached the spot the prisoner said, "Officer, take my revolver. I'm the man who shot him;" witness then took him to the Station-house.

Dr. Thomas Robinson, who made the post-mortem examination of the body, testified that he found three pistol shot wounds on the body of deceased in the following situations: One wound was in the umbilical region about one inch above and one-half inch to the left of the umbilicus; the second wound was in the right inguinal region, about one and a half inches below Popart's ligament, and midway between the anterior and superior spinous process of the illium, and the symphysis pubis: this wound passed through the thigh anterior to the femur, and lacerated some of the branches of the femoral artery; the third wound was through the left thigh, about one inch from, anterior to, and on a line with the greater trochanter.

At the conclusion of the testimony the jury rendered the following verdict: "That the deceased, Joseph Nixon, came to his death by pistol-shot wounds at the hands of Walter D. Bell."

Upon the rendition of the verdict, Coroner COLLIN made the usual examination of the prisoner, and in answer to the questions put to him, he stated that his name is WALTER D. BELL, 26 years of age, born in Scotland, and that he was attached to the naval service, as Master's Mate. In answer to the question as to what he had to say relative to the charge preferred against him, the accused said, "I had a difficulty with deceased in a bar-room in New-Orleans some time ago. I wrote to some men to compromise it with him, and they told me that he would not compromise with me, and that he would kill me on sight. About seven weeks ago I arrived here, and my brother told me that he (deceased) would shoot me the first chance he got. I stopped about the vessel two weeks, to keep out of his way. I always avoided his neighborhood; I purchased the pistol for safe protection. I have met him several times, and I always got out of his way. Last night I was coming down from the corner of James and Oliver streets, I was with LARKIN, going toward KANE's corner, for the purpose of taking a drink, when I saw three men coming down Oliver-street. When they came up, I did not at first recognize the deceased, who was one of the party. About this time one of my party winked and motioned me to go away. The deceased then turned his head toward me, and I then stepped back; whereupon he pulled out his pistol, cocked it, and pointed it at me. I then pulled out my revolver and aimed at his thigh, and retreated. He kept cocking his pistol and snapping it at me; I then fired two shots rapidly at him, I was too close to him to run, and too far away to grasp his revolver. I then went to give myself up, but was advised to wait. I then gave myself up to an officer."

Coroner COLLIN then committed the prisoner to the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Mission of the "George Griswold" to England—Present State of English Public Opinion.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

As many inquires are made of me respecting the expedition of the American relief-ship George Griswold with her cargo of 15,000 barrels of flour and food for the suffering operatives of Great Britain, permit me in a few words to state the facts:

The ship was received in Liverpool with many demonstrations of national respect. The civil, military and naval authorities united to bid her welcome. Her cargo was speedily distributed among those in need, by the hands of responsible parties. Large public meetings followed this distribution, in various parts of the distressed districts, at which the people received me as an American clergyman, with much good feeling and enthusiasm. Resolutions were passed, at the close of these popular demonstrations, warmly pledging the sympathy of the laboring masses of Great Britain with the struggle of the United States to maintain their Union and Constitution, as the strong hope of European liberty.

The report that the bread has been wasted by the recipients is entirely erroneous. On one occasion in Manchester—the anniversary of the marriage of the Prince of Wales—there were distributed among the crowd 15,000 penny loaves. There was some rush for them among the people, but not a loaf was wasted. When the character of the gift was explained to them the recipients were grateful, and carried the welcome American bread home to their families.

The facts warrant me in saying that a very large majority of the people of the British empire are strong for the union and freedom of America.

I shall be obliged to the editors of our country if they will copy this brief note.

CHARLES W. DENISON.

FROM VICKSBURGH.—It is feared that PEMBERTON will demand the surrender of the artillerist who shot off his Knox in the late battle. KNOX, the hatter, of No. 212 Broadway, has petitioned the President to refuse the demand. PEMBERTON is disheartened. The city must fall. The KNOX was a great favorite throughout the whole rebel army. The fatal shell blew it to atoms.
